Soviet Rocket Speeding Toward Moon Castro Forces Complete Cuba Victory Sweep

Havana Trek Is Next For Rebel Chief

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—Fidel Castro's rebels Friday night completed their victory sweep across Cuba from easternmost Oriente to westernmost Pinar del Rio province.

Rebels from outside Pinar del Rio and groups which have been battling government troops from the hills for the last six months have captured every army garrison in the heart of Cuba's tobacco-growing lands.

As word came of the rebel action in Pinar del Rio, a broadcast from Castro's headquarters in Oriente said he was leaving for Havana with armored forces and troops. The broadcast did not say when the rebel chief was starting on his westward journey to Havana but indications were he would be in the capital before the week ended.

TANKS IN BATTLE

A bloody tank battle ushered in the occupation of Havana by Castro's field troops.

From 40 to 50 men were believed killed in a three-hour fight between Castro forces and dihard Batistans within sight of the presidential palace as the city awaited the arrival of Manuel Urrutia, the man Castro has proclaimed provisional president.

Estimates of the wounded ranged up to 450.

Batistan groups numbering several hundred were apparently crushed.

Speaking not of this action but of a purported deal with Maj. Gen. Eulogio Cantillo of Batista's army, Castro charged in a broadcast from Santiago that he had been betrayed in his plan to take over Havana peacefully.

Riot-scattered Havana tensely awaited the arrival of both the 32-year-old rebel leader and Urrutia, a judge banished by the fallen President Fulgencio Batista.

Soviet Official May Arrive In N. Y. On Sunday

WASHINGTON (AP)—Soviet First Dep. Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan is expected to arrive in New York City early Sunday aboard a Scandinavian Airlines System plane.

This was one of several pieces of news that slipped out Friday from behind an official curtain of secrecy.

Authoritative sources said Mikoyan will head a party of six, including his son, Sergio Anastasovich Mikoyan, aged 35.

The elder Mikoyan, the Soviet Union's trade expert and second at the Kremlin only to Premier Nikita Khrushchev, is reported to have 10 American cities on his tentative itinerary.

They include Washington, D.C., New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Cleveland, Chicago, Detroit, Dallas, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Security maneuvers have blanketed Mikoyan's visit. The people in the Soviet Union have never been told he is coming to the United States. The State Department refers all questions to the Soviet Embassy, and the Soviet Embassy isn't talking.

The Soviets appeared to be guided by reasons of personal security. They may be worried about possible anti-Soviet demonstrations by former Hungarian Freedom Fighters and other refugees from communism.

In this connection, Rep. Walter H. Judd (R-Minn.) declined to attend a dinner in honor of Mikoyan, to be given here Monday night by Eric Johnston, motion picture industry leader.

Judd raised the question: "Why

Holidays Ending At Schools Here

This weekend will climax a two-week holiday period for students of city and parish schools and Northeast State College.

Several big events have occurred since classes recessed for the holidays. Santa has come and gone, and a new year was ushered in.

Classes in the three systems are slated to get under way at the regular times Monday, and no major vacations are ahead until late spring or early summer.

REP. WILLIS PREDICTS

House Will Seat Alford As Demo On Opening Day

WASHINGTON (Special)—Rep. Edwin E. Willis (D-La.) predicted Friday that a drive to "liberalize" the house rules committee and ban Little Rock Congressman Dale Alford will collapse before Congress convenes.

Willis said after an informal meeting of representatives from 11 southern states that he does not believe either move will even reach the house floor on opening day Wednesday.

The Congressman also denounced rumors of a deal between the Northern and Southern blocs as "reprehensible." These rumors implied that the liberal group would accept Alford if a liberal Democrat were added to the powerful rules committee.

OPTIMISM GROWS

"There is no such thing," Willis said concerning the rumor.

His statement came in the midst of increased optimism among southern congressmen over their chances of beating off the attack on the rules committee—an attack that appeared to be a major threat a few days ago.

Mississippi's veteran representative, William Colmer, said he is sure that the house leadership—an evident reference to Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas—will not approve any change in the status of the committee. Colmer is ranking Democrat on the rules committee.

Deer

And here's another "Deer Tale." A certain Monroe man (no names called) is friend of a local pastor who is friendly with a deer hunter, so friendly in fact that he delightedly gave a fine basis for a venison roast or two to a friend.

This friend accepted the gift, but failed to explain that a daughter in the family would be apt to spurn such thought as to feast off a poor little deer (deer).

The meat, taken home, was placed in the family ice box and in due time the person hostile when a deer feast was concerned, waxed on the war path.

"Do you think I would eat deer meat?" she ejaculated. "Why deer with those soulful eyes and sweet little faces, why I would be haunted the rest of my life if I ever ate any meat from a deer!"

Unless it has been thrown out, the meat is still unclaimed in an ice box!

New Column Tells How To Be Happier

Starting Monday in the Monroe Morning World is a column you'll not want to miss. It is a new, different, dynamic health column written by Dr. Peter J. Steincrohn, a noted physician for 25 years.

It is highly informative and also amusing. Men over 40 will particularly like his advice to their wives. The doctor advises the men to be lazy over the weekends instead of working hard at yard and household chores.

Dr. Steincrohn also points out how we are unconsciously destroying ourselves—that we are committing suicide without realizing it.

The column, which will run daily and Sunday on The World editorial page, will tell you how to control your daily living and live longer, how to be happier and enjoy life to the fullest.

If you are not already a regular subscriber of The World, you'll want to start immediately so as not to miss a single article. Call the circulation department today. Remember for the best in features, local, regional and national coverage, The World is unequalled in this area in the morning field.

Experts Fear Near Record Road Deaths

By UPI

Smash-ups on the highways killed at least one American every 20 minutes Friday night and safety experts threw out their predictions of a comparatively safe and sane New Year's holiday.

It was feared the final tally for the 102-hour holiday which started at 6 p.m. would come close to the record for the second worst New Year's week end, set in 1956, and perhaps rival the all-time mark for New Year's highway slaughter, set in 1952.

As the traffic toll mounted, the National Safety Council revised its estimate of 390 traffic deaths by midnight Sunday and said it appeared the toll would pass 400. The 1956 mark was 412 and the 1952 record was 423.

ABOVE NORMAL

The normal for a non-holiday period of the same duration in January is 350 traffic deaths.

A United Press International count at 11 p.m. e.s.t., 53 hours after the holiday's start, showed 198 traffic deaths, 33 dead in fires, 11 in plane crashes and 47 in other accidents for an overall New Year's toll of 289.

California, which had the most Christmas highway deaths, again led the states with 17 dead. New York had 15 roadway fatalities, Michigan and Wisconsin had 12 each and Illinois had 11.

The New Year's holiday death count started slowly, raising hopes that drivers had been shocked into sanity by the total of 599 persons killed in traffic during the Christmas week end.

Ominously, the death count ran far ahead of that of 1956, when 412 persons died over a 102-hour New Year's holiday. At the 47-hour point that year, the count was only 134, and it was only 154 four hours later. The only worse New Year's total was in 1952, when traffic accidents killed 423.

Tests Promising At New Gas Well In Calhoun Field

A promising gas well discovery in the upper Rodessa zone in the southwest area of Calhoun field at Arkansas-Louisiana Gas Company's Chapman B-1 was reported yesterday by company officials from Shreveport.

The New Year's Eve drill stem test of the well indicated the first upper Rodessa show in Calhoun field. Five other wells in this field have been sunk in the Hoss-ton formation (Travis Peak).

Industry officials hailed the new find as particularly significant to the southwest of the Calhoun area. Tested at 4,753-84 ft., Chapman B-1 showed an initial bottom hole shut-in pressure of 2,205 pounds for 15 minutes. With the drill stem open 20 minutes, tested pressure was 1,570 pounds with a final flowing pressure of 1,900 pounds.

Final bottom hole shut-in pressure was 2,205 pounds. Recovery of 200 feet of gas cut mud and 300 ft. of gas cut muddy water was reported with a 3/4 inch choke at the top of the well. Earlier completions in Calhoun

Freezing Rain Seen For Area

Winter is approaching again. So said the weatherman last night.

He forecasts a cloudy day in the Twin Cities area and Northeast Louisiana. Freezing rain is expected to fall here, and the mercury should dip sharply.

Tomorrow will continue cool and partly overcast.

Arkansas may expect occasional rain and freezing today with much colder weather. Temperatures will climb up to the low 30's and shiver there.

High temperature under yesterday's brilliant blue skies was 58, while the low reached the freezing mark, 32. Thursday's readings were 49 and 33.

Moscow Plans 'To Establish Base On Moon'

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio said Saturday the Soviet Union will make preparations to "equip an expedition to the moon which would establish an observatory and an intermediary base there for a future space flight."

The broadcast said this had been decided in "view of developments" since the first Soviet moon-bound rocket took off Friday.

Moscow radio made the announcement in relaying further details about the progress of the rocket. It did not go into detail about the "expedition."

The broadcast, as heard in London:

"According to program, first reports indicate that the last step of the multistage rocket has received the required cosmic speed."

"At about 7 a.m. Moscow time on Jan. 4 the rocket will reach the vicinity of the moon."

"The last stage of the cosmic ship weighs about 3,245 pounds without fuel."

"In view of these developments preparations will be made to equip an expedition to the moon which would establish an observatory and intermediary base there for a future space flight."

Ike Approves New 49-Star Flag Design

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UPI)—President Eisenhower gave final approval Friday to a new 49-star flag design in preparation for Saturday's White House ceremony admitting Alaska to the Union.

Army Quartermaster Corps designers flew to the Eisenhower farm by helicopter and showed the President several designs, including one which was favored by a presidential advisory committee on the new flag.

DESIGN SECRET

After getting Eisenhower's final approval, the designers flew back to Washington to get the new flag ready for its first public display. This will come at the White House Saturday during the ceremony in which the President will sign a proclamation making Alaska the 49th state.

The flag, which has been shrouded in secrecy, will go into general use July 4. The only thing White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty would tell reporters was that the flag would be red, white and blue and have 49 stars.

The President planned to fly to White House by helicopter at about 8:15 a.m. EST Saturday. He will sign the Alaska statehood proclamation and an Executive order setting the design for the new flag at noon in the White House Cabinet Room.

Alford To Skip Demo's Caucus

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Dr. Dale Alford, the segregationist written-in candidate who defeated Rep. Brooks Hays (D-Ark.) in the Nov. 4 elections, said Friday he would not attend a caucus next Tuesday of all newly-elected and holdover House Democrats.

"I wasn't invited, and I won't be there," he said.

Alford, who ran as an independent, declined to discuss the campaign of some House liberals to deny him party recognition and even his House seat, pending an investigation of charges that his election was fraudulent.

But some of his friends hinted that Alford may not be on hand at the opening of Congress on Wednesday when House members take their oath of office in a body.

His decision to avoid the Democratic caucus, and possibly the opening of Congress, obviously was designed to avoid a direct challenge to his right to be seated as a Democrat.

The House Elections Committee has recommended that Alford be denied his seat pending a full scale investigation of a complaint that he was elected by illegal methods.

RUSSIA LAUNCHES ROCKET TOWARD MOON — Arrow indicates trajectory of rocket which Russia Friday launched toward the moon, Moscow radio said the rocket has crossed the eastern border of the Soviet Union, passed over the Hawaiian Islands and it continues to move over the Pacific Ocean rapidly moving away from the earth. A separate broadcast said the rocket is expected to reach the area of the moon Sunday. (AP Wirephoto Map)

BY HOUSE SPACE GROUP New U.S. Moon Firings Favored

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congressional space experts called on the Eisenhower administration Friday to redouble American efforts to reach the moon. They said it should use two rockets already on hand at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Almost simultaneous with Russia's announcement of its moon rocket firing, the House Space Committee approved a resolution urging the Air Force to immediately schedule two American attempts. It said success would greatly enhance this country's world prestige.

CITES URGENCY

When the committee learned shortly afterwards that the Russian rocket already was streaking toward the moon such members as House GOP Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. said the Soviet firing "underlines the urgency of an immediate U.S. attempt."

At Gettysburg, Pa., where President Eisenhower is spending the Christmas - New Year's holiday, Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the Chief Executive would have no immediate comment on the Russian firing.

The Defense Department disclosed that it already was tracking the Soviet rocket. The department's Advanced Research Projects Agency (ARPA) said preliminary studies indicated the Russians were attempting the difficult feat of orbiting the moon rather than merely firing their rocket past earth's natural satellite.

A spokesman for the agency said the Russian rocket was broadcasting on 70.2 megacycles. He also confirmed, at least generally, the path of the rocket as announced by Radio Moscow. He said it would be over Sumatra Friday night as Moscow claimed.

This official also reported that the vehicle would be over northern Mexico or southern California sometime Saturday.

The next U. S. moon attempt probably will not come until after Feb. 1 at least. That is the time when the moon next will be in favorable firing position relative to earth.

The House Space Committee spelled out the diplomatic and propaganda benefits accruing to the first nation to reach the moon.

'Grandma' Robber Of Bank Captured

NEW YORK (UPI)—A frail-looking "grandmotherly" widow who robbed a midtown bank of $3,420 last month by threatening to douse a teller with "acid" was nabbed by a guard Friday when she tried to stage a holdup in the same manner at another bank.

The gray-haired 115-pound woman, who identified herself as Mrs. Vera Wilson, 57, walked to the window of teller Richard Lundberg in the Industrial Bank of Commerce shortly after 1 p.m. and handed him a note which said:

"Put $5,000 in 5, 10 and 20 dollar bills in this bag. There is acid in this glass. You wouldn't want it in your face. Don't try to warn anyone until I get out of here. Oh yes, I am being guarded by two guns. Let's not let your customers or your co-workers get hurt."

Lundberg managed to whisper to another teller, Boert Shaw, that there was "trouble." Shaw

Reds Claim Satellite Is 'On Target'

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union rifled a rocket toward the moon Friday and early Saturday reported it 62,500 miles out, on course, and due in the vicinity of the moon early Sunday.

In view of these developments, Moscow radio announced, Soviet scientists will make preparations to equip an expedition to the moon "which would establish an observatory and an intermediary base there for a future space flight."

The broadcast, in English, gave no details about the expedition but the Soviets apparently had been waiting to see how the moon rocket fared before making even this brief statement about their plans.

The nose cone carries the Soviet flag. The announcement said, and in addition to many instruments the rocket carries special equipment designed to create the sodium cloud of an artificial comet. This is to permit it to be observed and photographed.

Moscow radio called it "the first successful interplanetary flight" almost before the multistage rocket left the earth's atmosphere. It said the super-Sputnik was heading moonward at a 11.2 kilometers (7 miles) per second.

TRACK ROCKET

A dramatic log tracking the rocket out of Soviet Russia flashed abroad over the Moscow wavelength. It said the rocket had flashed eastward across the borders of Soviet Russia, had climbed across the Hawaiian Islands and was moving rapidly away from the earth over the Pacific Ocean.

Moscow estimated the rocket would have achieved a height of 68,354 miles from earth by shortly after midnight.

It was the first major space accomplishment announced by the Soviet Union since the launching of Sputnik III on May 15, 1958.

Soviet radio listeners heard signals from the moon rocket broadcast by Moscow radio. The home service announcer said:

"You will now hear signals from the transmitter of Planet 3."

A continuous high-pitched sound came on. The announcer said this was the first type of signal.

"Signals of the second type are now coming in," the announcer went on. Then came a fairly high-

Batista's Family Fears For Lives In New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Family and friends of ousted Cuban dictator Fulgencio Batista huddled in motel rooms Friday in fear that rebel sympathizers would kill them.

"We are afraid for our lives," said the ex-dictator's daughter, Mrs. Mirta Ponsdomenech, wife of a Cuban police surgeon.

Batista's first wife, their 25-year-old son, and two daughters arrived here by plane late Thursday in a party of 12 that fled from Jacksonville, Fla., where they said rebel sympathizers threatened them with guns.

They said rebel followers in New Orleans already have vowed to kill them.

Maj. Elmo Ponsdomenech, husband of Batista's daughter, moaned the lack of luggage.

"If I only had a razor," he said as he ran his hand over his beard. The Cuban party included Fulgencio's son by his first wife; his wife; and their one-year-old daughter; and Batista's two daughters by his first wife.

The refugees appeared aimless and had no idea of what their next move would be. They made vain jokes about their predicament.

SHOOT WAY INTO BUILDING

Rebels Threaten 3 U.S. Newsmen

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—Trigger-happy young Cuban rebels Friday stormed and shot their way into the Havana Post building and, at gunpoint, threatened to kill three Associated Press newsmen.

The rebel gunmen, apparently hunting for hidden arms, hammered away at the building with submachine gun, rifle and pistol fire for 15 minutes. Then they smashed through its front door and raced to the second floor.

They kicked open the door of the AP bureau and leveled their weapons at George Kaufman, Havana chief of bureau; correspondent Larry Allen; and Harold Valentine, photographer from the Miami bureau.

The rebel gunmen roughly pushed the three about and searched them for weapons. All protested they were Americans and never had any weapons.

The rebels then herded the three into the adjoining composing room of the English-language Havana Post, shouting excitedly.

One of the raiders declared he had found a pistol on the Post premises and all turned their guns at the newsmen, threatening to fire.

Kaufman and Allen had spent some time flat on the office floor, trying to write news and keep up with the teletype dispatches while bullets peppered about.

They were joined by Valentine, who had been racing about looking for a strategic spot in the building to take pictures of the shooting in the streets.

Allen gave this account of the developments:

"When the rebels came in, we all protested that we were American correspondents who had no interest in arms, had never pos-

'58 Best Year On Record For Tax Collection

Quachita Parish property owners paid 98.228 per cent of their taxes on homes and industries during 1958 — to make it the best year on record for percentage of taxes paid on time.

In the office of Tax Collector Bailey Grant, a total of $3,021,451.57 passed over the counter in the tax receipts during the past year.

The largest part of this—$2,117,787.57 — was paid during December.

Only $32,612.67 was delinquent; a penalty of 10 per cent interest was placed on taxes not yet paid, starting January 2.

However, with the most of the $3,074,064.04 owed during the past year already paid, C. D. Meredith, chief deputy, pointed out the payments were "far better than we had anticipated."

"We had a rush on payments Monday — Wednesday, Dec. 29, 30 and 31. So we worked in the office from 8:30 a.m. to 12 noon on January 1, to expedite the computations and close the year's business," he mentioned.

Assessor Sees Spiraling Trend In Taxes Here

With 1958 taxes a "thing of the past" — except for those unhappy residents who are now burdened with the 10 per cent interest for unpaid taxes — the parish assessor yesterday forecast that property assessments and taxes for 1959 will join in the spiraling trend of the cost of living.

Bert Coverdale, assessor for Quachita Parish, expects that 1959 will see an "all-time high" in total property assessments.

Homestead exemption forms will be ready for signing after Feb. 15, and deputies from the tax assessor's office will call on property owners, giving them the opportunity of signing the exemptions at home.

A total of 16,300 property owners owed $2,411,587.75 in taxes during the past year. In addition, $632,478.29 was provided to the parish by the state, for homestead exemptions.

British Plan Faster New Atomic Sub

LONDON (UPI)—Britain has started work on construction of an atomic submarine bigger and faster than the U.S.S. Nautilus, to be powered by an American-built nuclear reactor, it was announced Friday.

The Admiralty said the keel of a floating dock for building and maintaining the submarine was laid Thursday at Portsmouth Dockyard.

The submarine, to be named the Dreadnought, will cost $6 million dollars and will be powered by a reactor supplied by the Westinghouse Electric Corp.

The new submarine will be the first of a nuclear underwater fleet.

Authorities said the Dreadnought should be ready for sea trials by 1961. It will carry a crew of about 70. The whale-shaped vessel will have a submerged weight of 4,500 tons compared with 3,747 for the Nautilus, the world's first atomic submarine.

The British said the Dreadnought's continuous underwater speed would exceed the Nautilus 23 knots.

The reactor for the Dreadnought will be supplied in exchange for Britain's agreement to give the United States full information on advanced research into nuclear power for surface ships, it was reported.

Belgians Ready Declaration On Future Of Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, Belgian Congo (AP)—Belgian authorities are preparing a declaration on the Congo's future, highly placed source say.

The declaration is due about Jan. 15 and is expected to make a reference to possible future independence, without fixing a time limit.

The declaration is being hurried apparently because of Belgian concern over the number of internally autonomous republics cropping up in French African possessions under Charles de Gaulle's new French constitution.

The former territories of Ubangi-Shari and the Middle Congo have chosen names considered somewhat ominous by Belgians. Ubangi-Shari styles itself "the Central African Republic" and the Middle Congo "the Congo Republic."

The Belgian Congo's northern borderlands are inhabited by the same tribes that form these semi-independent states.

The Belgian administration has taken steps to better conditions of the Negro. The whip has been abolished as punishment in the Congo army and in prisons. Circulation between the white and black quarters of Leopoldville is now permitted freely for the first time. Previously Negroes had to have hard-to-get passes to visit white quarters after 10 p.m.

U.S. Officials Told New Cuban Rule Bans Reds

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Department officials say they have been told there is very little trace of Communist influence at the higher levels in the revolutionary movement that overthrew President Fulgencio Batista in Cuba.

Inquiries were made by newsmen Friday in the light of the contention from the Batista side that the rebels are Red tinged.

Officials were unwilling to be quoted by name, but they said there are indications the leadership in the uprising has been trying to avoid any Communist infiltration.

One official was asked specifically about reports that Ernesto Guevara, Argentine physician and one of the top field commanders in the rebel movement, is a Communist or a fellow traveler.

The reply was that there have been many such reports, but that a close friend of the rebel leader has said he is strongly anti-Communist.

Other projects, by parishes, are: Natchitoches: Bids to furnish 250 cubic yards of washed gravel, spot-dumped on Cooper Road.

Webster: Removal of building and appurtenances at the Dixie Inn on Horton highway, state route 7.

Allen: Bids to supply 5,700 cubic yards of washed gravel, spot-dumped on designated parish roads.

Soviet Moon Shot Success Is Possible

NEW YORK (AP)—The Soviet Union's shot for around the moon could reasonably be accorded a very good chance of success.

In the past the Soviets have delayed any word about their rocket launchings until their scientists knew they were successful. In censored Russia, this is easy. It is also policy.

All this could mean the moon rocket was well along its way before the attempt was announced.

Soviet scientists probably first satisfied themselves the rocket had been fired with sufficient velocity to reach the moon. And also that it was known to be on course, by radar and radio signals from the rocket.

Secondly, Russia has the rocket thrust to send a fairly heavy and well-instrumented probe toward the moon. The booster rockets which launched the Soviet Sputniks are generally believed to possess 500,000 to 600,000 pounds thrust. This is well above even the U.S. Atlas rocket.

If the Soviet rocket is intended to orbit around the moon, it could carry some camera eye to photograph and transmit back pictures of the never-before-seen hidden side of the moon. The moon always turns its same face toward the earth due to the timing of its revolution as it wheels around the earth.

Getting such first pictures of the mystery side of the moon was an objective of the unsuccessful pioneer moon rocket launched by the U.S. Air Force.

Thirdly, it has been a puzzle as to what the Soviets were up to next in the space age. They have not announced any satellite or rocket attempts since the successful launching of Sputnik III last May. Sputnik III was a veritable cosmic laboratory, with instruments to measure many phenomena in space. It is still orbiting.

Whether they have attempted shots since then might be known to U.S. military intelligence, which is said to be able to detect at least some of the Soviet rocket launchings through radar based in Turkey.

What is known is that the Russians have the capability. They have talked of shooting for the moon and other planets, as well as putting man into space some day.

The announced weight of 3,248 pounds for the last stage of the Soviet rocket, empty of fuel, means the probe could carry elaborate scientific equipment, including photographic devices and transmitters.

Karen Lee Blue, 2, Dies; Final Rites Scheduled

Little children are important in the life of Milton Blue. He is in charge of the Cerebral Palsy school at Selman Field — where afflicted youngsters are taught how to cope with a fast-paced world.

To him, the hope of helping any little one is an inspiring factor in life.

Friday, death sat down quietly by the bedside of a pretty two-year-old girl. Mr. and Mrs. C. Milton Blue of Monroe left the Caldwell clinic in Columbia, but little Karen Lee Blue could not accompany them.

One of the Blue's three daughters saw only two days of 1958. But to Blue, despite tragedy, there is still the thought that he can help other toddlers grow into strong adulthood.

Funeral services for Karen will be conducted at 3 p.m. Saturday, in the chapel of the Mulhearn Funeral home in Monroe. Her body will lie in state at the chapel throughout the day.

The Rev. Lea Joyner will officiate at the rites, and interment will follow, in the Memorial Park Cemetery.

Survivors, in addition to her parents, include two sisters, Lorraine and Martha Blue; her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Leese, her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Coy Wadley, and her paternal great-grandmother, Mrs. A. A. Adams, all of Monette, Missouri.

Pallbearers will be Herman Gulleddge, Bob Hopper, Ralph Wilson and J. B. Clements.

Bankers In U.S. Act To Stabilize Franc In France

PARIS (AP)—The French Finance Ministry Friday night announced that a syndicate of U.S. banks had agreed to put up 200 million dollars as a stand-by credit for stabilization of the French franc.

The statement said that the credit would run for two years. The Chase Manhattan Bank and First National City Bank of New York were listed as the heads of the syndicate.

The ministry said that the sum was in addition to the support already given France by several foreign banks. It was announced on Monday that the German National Bank had given France a credit of 50 million dollars to help the franc move into limited convertibility. No announcement has been made of any other credits.

Castro Controls Cuba Consulates

CHICAGO (AP)—The rebel Castro government took control of Cuban consulates in several U.S. cities Friday without resistance from consuls who had served in the Batista regime.

In Chicago, Constantine N. Hangles, attorney in the United States for Fidel Castro, said the consular documents are being impounded for possible use to the new government as evidence in war criminal trials.

The Chicago seizure was accomplished with a handshake. In New York the minister-consul general signed a transfer of authority in an orderly, formal ceremony.

In Miami the Batista-appointed consul continued in office but with a Castro representative at his elbow. The Detroit consul was hoarse from cheering for the insurgents.

Kangles said Cuban consulates throughout the world will be seized as the need arises.

The replaced Chicago consul, Jose Luis Valera, a career diplomat of 23 years service, arranged to stay on and cooperate with his successor, Serapio Montejo, a Midwestern Castro leader.

Kangles ordered the documents and records placed under seal and an around-the-clock guard pending inspection by diplomatic officers from the Cuban Embassy in Washington.

Kangles said Castro appointed him legal representative of the rebel forces in the United States on April 4, 1958. Kangles added that months of planning was behind the seizure of consulates.

The New York minister-consul general, Dr. Alfredo Hernandez, 46, transferred his authority to Antonio de Souza, 60, his second in command, and told newsmen he would remain in New York even if recalled to Havana.

He said that for more than 25 years he has been a personal friend of Gen. Fulgencio Batista but never indulged in propaganda against the forces that won control of the Cuban government.

A consulate spokesman said De Souza was acceptable to the Castro party.

In Miami, Oscar Ramirez, who expects to be named consul by the Castro government, said the Batista-appointed consul, Antonio Medina, invited him to move into the office, assist Medina and keep affairs orderly.

"It is not our idea to take over anything from him," Ramirez said of Medina, a career diplomat of 50 years' service.

"I don't think the government should do anything against him," Ramirez added. "He has been and is working for the people."

In Detroit voiceless consul Rogelio Guillot was unable to say anything. He went hoarse cheering for the insurgents. Asked if he favored the change of government, he wrote his reply: "Absolutely."

Kangles, a 'master-in chancery of Chicago's Supreme Court as well as an attorney, said Castro supporters were proceeding to take over Cuban consulates all over the United States. He so learned, he said, from the embassy in Washington.

Kangles said a move will be made to return "war criminals who fled to the United States."

Hoffa's Power Dream

Even before his reportedly illegal ascendancy to the throne of the International Teamsters Union, James R. Hoffa, now president of that organization, was credited with having fantastic dreams of world power. Those dreams have not faded despite court challenges of the legality of his election.

In the most ambitious move of his career, the alleged consort of gangsters and criminals has set out to organize city police officers throughout the United States under his dominion. Success of such an undertaking, of course, would give this notorious character virtual police powers over this country, for he would expect to control all actions of the police. Such an organization would turn the police forces of this country into a gestapo of the type organized by Adolf Hitler in Germany.

There is not much chance that Hoffa's bid for United States and then international power will be successful but the fact that he is attempting such a thing constitutes a danger in itself. It is well known that radical elements are always eager to give their support to a ruthless organizer, hoping to gain for themselves a little of the power that would rub off on them through association with such a man.

It is only natural that Hoffa should start his "big push" in New York, since it is the biggest city and also since it is one of the cities in which gangsterism flourishes and in which many of the most radical elements, including Communists, are to be found.

There can be no doubt that Hoffa will receive Communist support in this bid. It is just what the Communists want—something to upset the orderly procedure of government in this country so that it may more easily fall a prey to their schemes.

Police Commissioner Stephen P. Kennedy branded the effort of the Teamsters to organize the New York city police as a "big push" by Hoffa to organize police throughout the United States. Kennedy said he would fight by every legal means any picketing or union action which interfered with police operations.

Banks And Farms

Looking at the tools of his trade, including a heavy tractor, mechanical planters and half a dozen other mechanized implements, a young farmer said:

"That's about $17,000 worth. If the bank weren't allowing me about five years to pay my loans, I couldn't be farming. I'd have to get a job working for some one else."

The young farmer's experience underscores a revolution that has quietly been taking place in rural lending. Prior to the end of World War II most bankers limited non-real estate loans to six months. Now most of them make intermediate loans, with some offering as long as five years to pay.

These loans have paved the way for farmers to buy the extra machinery, irrigation equipment and better breeding stock that have done so much to step up farm productivity.

Henry Feinstein, New York representative of the Teamsters, had announced that the union would start picketing the main police headquarters on Jan. 12 and subsequently would picket precinct stations and supply depots of the 24,000-man force.

This, of course, is nothing less than putting the police under union surveillance and an attempt by physical action, or presence, to interfere with police operations. It is also an attempt to force police officers to join the union.

Kennedy inferred that he would use force, if necessary, to prevent interference with police operations.

Should Teamster members refuse to cross picket lines it could interfere with the delivery of gasoline for police patrol cars and ambulances.

It is certain that attempts to organize police under Hoffa domination would meet state and city resistance in many states, particularly in the south, but if the Teamsters should be successful in organizing police in such cities as New York, Chicago, Detroit and San Francisco the power of the Teamsters would become so great that it would be like an avalanche overflowing into other cities and resistance would be extremely difficult. If the big cities in the north and West should be taken over by Hoffa it would not be long before attacks would be made on New Orleans, Houston and other big southern port cities.

Hoffa was credited with gaining office by organizing fake Teamster Union locals, composed of gangsters and police characters. He was accused of getting enough illegal votes to override the will of a majority of the bona fide members of the union. This shows the dangerous type of man that he is.

If there was ever a time when congress should beware of the power that has fallen into the hands of the big bosses of unionism, it is now. Instead of paying off the unionneers for election interference, members of congress should act to reduce the powers of the big union bosses so that they will no longer constitute a threat to the safety of this country.

The farmers' advances have been fast. In 1958 they harvested record crops from plantings on the smallest amount of land in 40 years and with far less manpower. A farmer worker turns out as much in one hour now as in two hours back in 1940.

To do this, farmers had to increase their tractor fleet from 1.5 million in 1940 to 4.7 million in 1958. They've trebled the number of trucks and spent vast sums to improve the soil.

This makes farming a high-investment undertaking. The young farmer who had $17,000 worth of equipment had enough to start with but many farms have equipment investments of $50,000 to $100,000 or more. Farming has become big business and the farmer obtains bank loans almost as readily as do businessmen.

Both the farmers and the banks have profited under the new system.

GEORGE SOKOLSKY'S DAYS

Strikes Deliberately Set For Christmas Unjustified

Not one of the rash of strikes that were deliberately set for the Christmas holidays was justified by any of the circumstances surrounding them. If a strike is against an employer, that is one thing; when strike strategy requires inconveniences to the American people, it is a public nuisance. The strike leaders chose the Christmas period when the public might be most embarrassed by the strikes. They were, in effect, striking against the American people.

The strike of the New York City truckmen, engaged in delivering newspapers, was not even a strike of laborers. The union is a private organization, kept small by its officers, the members of which are well-off middle class persons who have established a monopoly based upon the peculiar geography of New York. They are, in many instances, better paid than educated, literate men who prepare the material that goes into the newspapers. Their sole task is to drive trucks, throw bundles of newspapers off the trucks at certain specified spots, yell at the newsstand men to come and seize the bundles. Their work is at best semiskilled because they drive a truck. They do not possess any other skill. Manners, they have none, and I have often wondered why a citizen does not swear out a warrant for the arrest of these hoarse, yelling, loud-mouthed jokers who appear at a corner with their wares, fling them at passers-by without so much as an excuse me.

These crude people struck to get more pay than reporters, writers, copy-readers, even office boys, the equal of whom they are in nothing. They deprived the newspapers of their revenue during the best advertising season of the year; they deprived merchandisers of advertising outlets during the Christmas holidays. They deprived the public of news at a time when the news of the world was of considerable importance.

I understand that during this strike period, when the pilots of airplanes struck to discount the advantage of progress, the impudent Mr. Hoffa, leader of the Teamsters, pronounced learnedly on the need for organizing the police into labor unions run by the police into labor unions run by, doubtably by such persons as himself who were put out of the AFL-

CIO because that body could not stand their racketeering practices. Perhaps when Hoffa has organized the police of our large cities in racketeer-managed unions, it will be characteristic of the politicians to bring Lucky Luciano back from Italy to be police commissioner in New York. In fact, instead of holding an annual session of the FBI Academy, it will then be smart to hold a convention of police chiefs at Apalachin together with the leaders of the Mafia so that brothers in crime might know how to operate with the least inconvenience for the criminal elements. This is the ultimate in a public-be-damned policy.

The house of labor, as John L. Lewis used to call it, had better take a look at itself. This year, it has overstepped the line of decency and propriety. Labor cannot quite be blamed for the newspaper truckmen's strike, for those are not laborers and that is not an unaffiliated group, but there is no reason why honest, decently oriented labor unions should not have crossed the picket line when a crowd like this calls a strike, and most of them didn't. If the picket line is to be a symbol of something sacred, it must be kept clean and never used for foul purposes. This strike was foul.

Certainly, if Jimmy Hoffa organizes the police in his racket-ridden unions, there can be no picketline. What should happen then is that martial law should be declared in the area, the troops sent in, the police disbanded and dismissed. For to turn the police control, the police files, the fingerprint files, over to the kind of union that James Hoffa is producing is to risk the destruction of law and order and the reduction of government to anarchy.

WASHINGTON, D. C. —Congressman Oliver Oldstyle, a traditionalist in name and nature, wasn't going to do anything different in 1959 — or was he?

"Well, I might just reconsider a few positions," said Mr. Oldstyle, adjusting his Old Guard tie. "Not that I'm admitting the 1958 elections proved me to be wrong, or anything, you understand."

Of course not. Would Mr. Oldstyle be joining any of the Modern Republicans or Reconstructed Southern Democrats, for instance?

"Not joining them," said Mr. Oldstyle. "But I might start nodding to some of them as we pass in the corridors. After all—tolerance is an old-style virtue."

Then the Old Guard might be more flexible in 1959 about the disputed subjects of 1958? Would he give some examples?

"Well, Federal aid to education is not one of them," said Mr. Oldstyle. "We will never accept the principle that the central government should supercede the local school boards when it comes to educating our children. Still—we have already agreed to special exceptions in the case of 'Federally-impacted' school districts. And we did pass last session's 'national defense' education bill."

The Old Guard might be more charitable in considering exceptions to the rule, while keeping the rule, eh?

"We might," Mr. Oldstyle admitted with a slight grinding of teeth. "And then there's the question of school integration. I can foresee that certain Southerners who have been saying 'Never!' may go so far as to say 'Well—hardly ever.' By this I don't mean to imply that the Warren Court and its decisions will be any less abominable in 1959 than before, but the Administration has retreated and . . ."

Has retreated?

"Well, Federal troops left Little Rock and never came back," said Mr. Oldstyle. "That is retreat, isn't it? The Administration made the mistake of opposing local option, and our side will never do that. We will never send Confederate troops to prevent a Northern or Southern district from integrating its schools if that's what the people really want. All we ask is reciprocity."

And the subject of foreign aid? "Billions for tribute!" scornfully cried Mr. Oldstyle, an incurable loyalist to lost causes. "A foreign policy of prostitution—commercialized love, purchased friendship. Every American with a drop of Oldstyle blood should oppose foreign aid as a way of bribing foreigners not to join the enemy. However. . ."

However, sir?

"Well, some of my best friends are foreign aiders. I shall continue to hate the sin while loving some of the sinners. In 1959 I'm not going to cut any conservative relatives out of my will for supporting overseas giveaways. I'm going to concentrate on reforming the system. It's time we tried to get a hundred cents worth of results for the aid-dollar."

"More hardware, less propaganda in both foreign aid and national defense," said Mr. Oldstyle, who never did care for the new styles of Madison Avenue. "You ought to write something on the military value of the talking satellite. All we've heard about is President Eisenhower sending Christmas greetings from space. But here is an aerial vehicle that must have enormous value for electronic reconnaissance and for pinpointing H-bomb targets before the enemy lines. A public relations triumph—sure! But the American taxpayer doesn't shell out $40 — plus billion in defense spending for the fun of saying 'There, now!' to the Russians."

The 85th Congress left some unfinished business behind last summer. Many of Mr. Oldstyle's political associates had helped block the Kennedy-Ives Labor bill because it was too weak, thereby allying themselves with the Laborites who thought Kennedy-Ives was too strong. It's an old tie-up between the extremes of Right and Left. It has resulted in the failure of democratic governments in other countries. Of course, failure can't happen here, but . . .

"Don't press me too far," said the Honorable Oliver Oldstyle. "Sometimes I think we conservatives hate the middle-roads more than we hate the left-wingers. We loath compromise of principle, and that's where the middle-roads or moderates or 'moderns' always take us. No, don't press me beyond the limits of my conservative nature."

It's a New Year, but you're not really a new man, eh?

"That's about it," said Oliver Oldstyle.

Certainly, if Jimmy Hoffa organizes the police in his racket-ridden unions, there can be no picketline. What should happen then is that martial law should be declared in the area, the troops sent in, the police disbanded and dismissed. For to turn the police control, the police files, the fingerprint files, over to the kind of union that James Hoffa is producing is to risk the destruction of law and order and the reduction of government to anarchy.

Bell, Marconi, Morse Inventions Travel Far

Those three great inventors — Bell, Marconi and Morse — would be pleasantly surprised if they could drop in on the United States today and see what they started with their devices to extend man's range of communication.

Take it from the Federal Communications Commission, things have come a long way since then.

Consider a few examples. The nation's telephones are approaching 70,000,000, most of them dial phones. Americans make about 250,000,000 phone calls every day. Radios and television sets? The U. S. has more sets than people — 150,000,000 radios and 50,000,000 TV sets. And the Nation's telegraph system handles about 150,000,000 messages a year.

It's no exaggeration to say the U. S. would virtually be thrown into turmoil over night if this vast communications system were disrupted. It is used on land, on water and in the air. Every individual citizen depends on it and business, industry and public agencies could not long survive without it.

In the radio field alone there are 1,400,000 fixed and mobile transmitters. Over 300,000 are operated by public bodies in connection with safeguarding life and property. Police departments have 167,000 transmitters; fire departments, 60,000; forestry conservation agencies, 34,000; highway maintenance, 28,000, and special emergency units, 13,000.

Aviation operations are handled by over 81,000 transmitters, 60,000 of which are on aircraft. Marine safety and navigation uses 80,000 transmitters, 75,000 of these on ships. Add to this 3,700 U. S. ships which have radar and shore installations which use radar to help boats enter and leave harbors.

Some 342,000 transmitters are employed for land transportation — over 100,000 for dispatching taxicabs, over 65,000 for railroad operations, 33,000 for trucks, 2,700 for passenger buses and 9,000 for automobile emergency aid.

Bigger and better things are in the offing to help expand this business of communication even further. Public telephone service to passengers on planes in flight is now being tested. The first telephone cables to connect North America with Europe and the United States with Alaska and Hawaii are in operation. One-way signalling systems for "paging" customers are increasing month by month.

On the entertainment side of things we now have 500 TV stations on the air. Over 90 per cent of the population is within range of at least one TV station and 75 per cent is in the service area of two or more TV stations. About 85 per cent of all homes have one or more TV receivers. At present the U. S. is the only nation receiving regular TV color programs.

This progress is fine but it's causing FCC all kinds of technical problems. The biggest of these is finding "spectrum space" for new and expanding services, obtaining more economical use of available frequencies, and controlling interference not only between stations but also from the mounting use of non-communication electronic devices.

So far, FCC has been able to find room in the increasingly crowded airwaves for more stations by splitting channels and other developments. Because some types of transmitters can take up more of the airwaves than they actually need new equipment is constantly being tested at the commission's laboratory for approval before they are manufactured and marketed.

As part of its job FCC administers the CONELRAD (control of electromagnetic radiation) program governing radio station operation in event of an enemy attack. The commission, in cooperation with the Air Force, Weather Bureau and broadcast stations, has put the system to excellent peacetime use in connection with a quicker means of alerting communities to threats of serious weather and flood conditions.

The commission says its work load has practically doubled in the past five years with no more personnel and little increase in appropriations. In the face of this, FCC is beset with multiplying administrative, legal and legislative problems.

Right now the commission is trying to see what can be done to bring about more competitive TV facilities and whether more AM stations can use channels which bring programs from far stations to remote areas at night. It is also seeking to determine the extent to which daytime AM stations can operate longer hours without serious interference to other stations rendering night-time service.

The commission checks the airwaves around the clock to insure that nothing goes out over the air that is not authorized by FCC or is in good taste. Approximately 130 illegal transmitters were turned up last year as a result of these investigators. Mobile equipment moving around in every part of the nation can quickly ferret out these transmitters and trace them to their source.

HOLMES ALEXANDER

Oldstyle To Be More Friendly

WASHINGTON, D. C. —Congressman Oliver Oldstyle, a traditionalist in name and nature, wasn't going to do anything different in 1959 — or was he?

"Well, I might just reconsider a few positions," said Mr. Oldstyle, adjusting his Old Guard tie. "Not that I'm admitting the 1958 elections proved me to be wrong, or anything, you understand."

Of course not. Would Mr. Oldstyle be joining any of the Modern Republicans or Reconstructed Southern Democrats, for instance?

"Not joining them," said Mr. Oldstyle. "But I might start nodding to some of them as we pass in the corridors. After all—tolerance is an old-style virtue."

Then the Old Guard might be more flexible in 1959 about the disputed subjects of 1958? Would he give some examples?

"Well, Federal aid to education is not one of them," said Mr. Oldstyle. "We will never accept the principle that the central government should supercede the local school boards when it comes to educating our children. Still—we have already agreed to special exceptions in the case of 'Federally-impacted' school districts. And we did pass last session's 'national defense' education bill."

The Old Guard might be more charitable in considering exceptions to the rule, while keeping the rule, eh?

"We might," Mr. Oldstyle admitted with a slight grinding of teeth. "And then there's the question of school integration. I can foresee that certain Southerners who have been saying 'Never!' may go so far as to say 'Well—hardly ever.' By this I don't mean to imply that the Warren Court and its decisions will be any less abominable in 1959 than before, but the Administration has retreated and . . ."

Has retreated?

"Well, Federal troops left Little Rock and never came back," said Mr. Oldstyle. "That is retreat, isn't it? The Administration made the mistake of opposing local option, and our side will never do that. We will never send Confederate troops to prevent a Northern or Southern district from integrating its schools if that's what the people really want. All we ask is reciprocity."

And the subject of foreign aid? "Billions for tribute!" scornfully cried Mr. Oldstyle, an incurable loyalist to lost causes. "A foreign policy of prostitution—commercialized love, purchased friendship. Every American with a drop of Oldstyle blood should oppose foreign aid as a way of bribing foreigners not to join the enemy. However. . ."

However, sir?

"Well, some of my best friends are foreign aiders. I shall continue to hate the sin while loving some of the sinners. In 1959 I'm not going to cut any conservative relatives out of my will for supporting overseas giveaways. I'm going to concentrate on reforming the system. Compliment Club Aids In Housing

George Barry typifies the highest type of teacher, for he volunteers to handle a Sunday School class even though his whole workaday week is devoted to similar educational and counseling problems. Say "Thank you" to these unselfish folks who try to help our children develop morality and unselfishness. And use the "Compliment Club" as a class project.

Case A — 418: George A. Barry is the talented Housing Counselor at Ferris Institute, in Big Rapids, Michigan.

"Dr. Crane," he graciously informed me, "your psychology column gave me another assist today."

"I have wanted to say 'Thanks' for a long time because so many of your ideas fit into the practical problems that confront me daily. My job involves supervising and counseling 1,150 residents of our campus housing units."

"Today, for example, I used your 'Compliment Club' plan as a means of readjusting the social outlook of a student who needed such aid."

"And your newspaper 'Case Histories' are usually the subjects for my high school Sunday School group."

"I usually keep three or four of your columns tucked away in my Bible to keep the class from lagging."

ALERT TEACHERS

"His it is who says it best," is an old adage attributed to Emerson.

Nobody has a monopoly of psychology or any other branch of knowledge.

All good teachers share their information with others. And they likewise keep alert to pick up any workable ideas from outside.

George Barry, therefore, illustrates the well-rounded type of modern educator who realizes that ideas are where you find them. He recognizes the value of the daily newspaper as a widespread educational medium, and clips relevant columns so he can use them to make his own classroom more successful.

Although I have never sat in his class, I am sure that his students rate him as "tops," since he keeps on his toes to document his lectures with concrete examples and actual cases from real life.

That is the mark of a popular public speaker as well as a superb teacher.

ZEAL MAKES TEACHING

It is part of what we call "zeal" for one's profession or trade.

Talented men bubble over with enthusiasm. And they constantly reach out for helpful information which they can employ to document their courses.

Please notice, too, that George Barry volunteers his services on Sunday to help build up idealism and morality among teen-agers, even though he is tied - in with education all the rest of the week.

Many men, with less zeal and less love for their fellow men, would welcome the chance to hide away on Sunday at the golf links or along a trout stream.

"I get fed up with young people," they might add, "and I feel I do my duty to American youth during the 5 - day week while I am in the classroom."

"So why should I tie myself down with more teaching of high schoolers on Sunday when I am off work?"

Pay tribute to the faithful school teachers who then donate their time on Sunday to help nurture idealisms in the minds of your children.

The backbone of the Sunday Schools consists of public school teachers who go that "second mile" and volunteer to prepare lessons and try to tutor modern kids in sober, moral behavior.

If you wish to salute them, then pay them an oral compliment in person, for a lot of the Sunday School teachers receive no thanks from the parents whose kids they are helping.

And send a "League of the Golden Pen" letter to such deserving folks. Jot down a word of gratitude for their unselfishness and thus perk up their morale, for teachers often get low in their spirits, too.

Send for the "Compliment Club" booklet, enclosing a stamped return envelope, plus 20 cents (non-profit).

It makes a dandy Sunday School project that is full of fun and constructive by-products for all involved.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long 4 cent stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Labor Savings Add Up Calories

Modern living is conducive to more rest and less physical activity. We are loaded to the hilt with labor saving devices and electronic equipment. Even power steering and power brakes have eliminated what little physical exertion there is to driving to work.

All this has affected what the Council on Foods and Nutrition of the American Medical association calls the caloric cost of living. Food supplies the energy needed by the body to function properly. These basic requirements constitute one-half to two-thirds the total requirements of the average white collar worker and housewife. Part of the calories are used by the body to keep warm, the heart to pump blood, the stomach to digest food, and the lungs to contain oxygen.

What happens to the remainder? They supply energy needed for physical activity. Any excess is stored as fat. It is here that our soft life is beginning to show, especially along the beltline.

Our positive caloric balance eventually results in pronounced obesity. When unused calories are converted into weight, approximately 3,500 are needed to make one pound. The reverse is true also in that 3,500 calories must be burned up through physical activity to lose one pound of fat. As we all know, it is easier to create a positive balance through eating than a negative balance by means of diet and exercise.

The average active person gets along on 2,500 to 3,000 calories daily. The laborer requires much more and the polar explorer, 9,000. Low caloric diets vary from 800 to 1,200 calories. With our modern equipment that spares so much activity, to avoid obesity we must become more active or eat less.

A man who lives 2½ miles from work burns up 17 calories driving his car, according to Dr. Herbert Pollack and Dr. Gerhard J. Isaac. Cycling will utilize 122; walking, 210. Thus 386 more calories are burned by walking rather than riding.

The typist working a mechanical typewriter burns up 450 more calories than the girl who operates an electric typewriter. In 10 weeks, this is equivalent to a pound of weight, provided her diet remains unchanged. The farmer driving an ordinary tractor uses 150 calories an hour, but power steering reduces this to 126. He expended 400 calories an hour when he walked behind the plow.

WHEEZING FROM HAY FEVER

B. R. writes: Why does asthma come as a complication to hay fever?

REPLY

This is most likely to occur in those who are highly allergic, more so when no attempt is made to reduce susceptibility via desensitization shots. Such complications occur in one in three hay fever victims and several hay fever seasons may pass before it develops.

HERNIA IN THE STOUT

M. W. writes: Are the overweight more inclined to suffer from hernia than the slender?

REPLY

Yes. Inguinal hernia is most likely to occur in persons with an inherent weakness of the tissues in the groin. The hernia may appear at birth or in years to come, depending upon the amount of strain this area is given. It is here that the stout person is handicapped because his weakened tissues have more blubber to push about.

ENCEPHALITIS VACCINE

A. M. P. writes: Is there an inoculation against encephalitis?

REPLY

Vaccines are available but they usually are recommended only for animals and for workers in occupations that make them special risks (woodsmen, laboratory employees).

Willis Predicts House Will Seat Alford As Demo

the attempt to weaken the committee would have little chance, even 160 members reportedly have called for a change. The liberal bloc has complained that the rules committee has blocked bills dealing with civil rights, housing, education and other matters.
On the Alford case, Willis said, "It is my opinion Alford will be sworn in—and as a Democrat."
He noted that Brooks Hays, whom Alford defeated in a surprise write-in campaign, has filed no complaint about the election.
Willis also asserted that the three-man majority of the special election committee which voted last month to recommend against seating Alford was "merely expressing its opinion."

Reds Claim Satellite Is 'On Target'

pitted note followed by another note about an octave higher. The two sounds were quickly repeated. The over-all weight of the new cosmic rocket was not mentioned. Tass said the "last stage" weighed 1,472 kilograms (3,245.2 lbs.) without the fuel and was equipped with a special container inside of which were various measuring apparatus. The weight of the equipment was given as about 796½ lbs.

The rocket carries a picture of the Hammer and Sickle into the far reaches of outer space and a sign saying: "U.S.S.R., January 1959."
With what appeared to be complete confidence, Moscow radio said the rocket will reach the vicinity 7 a.m. Moscow time Sunday (11 p.m. Saturday EST).
The Soviet announcement immediately raised speculation that Soviet science has reached a stage at which a man could be successfully launched into orbit around the moon. The size of the final stage was regarded as more than adequate for a man to eat, breathe comfortably and even stretch his legs.

This was the Soviet's first announced attempt to reach the moon, although three satellites have been successfully shot around the earth. With the satellites, the Soviets announced only the weight of the payloads—that is the weight of instruments without their carrier rocket.
They departed from precedent with the moon shot by disclosing the weight of the entire final stage.

The final stage is about one-third the weight of the 4½ ton American Atlas satellite now circling the earth. But Moscow has claimed the Atlas is inferior in weight to each of its own globe-girdling satellites.
Moscow did not disclose how many stages the moon shot contained.

Commenting on this, in London, the science correspondent of the British Press Assn. wrote:
"It is fair to assume that what they have done has been to put an extra stage on their Sputnik launching rocket to get it to reach what they describe as the second cosmic speed—the speed which would take a space ship into a parabolic orbit away from the earth toward the planet."

"The experience of Soviet artificial earth satellites has made it possible to accumulate the material necessary for an implementation of space flights and for reaching other planets of the solar system," the broadcast said.

The moon rocket was launched Friday, Moscow radio said.
Soviet scientists and engineers have devised a multistage rocket which can reach a cosmic speed of 11.2 kilometers (7 miles) per second, "making interplanetary flights possible," the broadcast went on.

"The multistage cosmic rocket has come out according to program on the trajectory of its movements in the direction of the moon."

"According to preliminary data the last stage of the rocket received the requisite cosmic speed. "Continuing its progress the rocket has crossed the eastern border of the Soviet Union, passed over the Hawaii Islands and it continues to move over the Pacific Ocean rapidly moving away from the earth."

The United States has made four unsuccessful bids to fire a space probe to, or beyond the moon.

The last attempt was Dec. 7 when the Army's gold-plated Pioneer III plunged to a fiery death over Timbuktu, Africa, after it had been tracked to a height of 66,654 miles.

The first three shots were handled by the Air Force.

The first moon rocket exploded 77 seconds after it took off from Cape Canaveral, Fla., on Aug. 17. This shot was never named.

The second—in the Pioneer series—was fired Oct. 11. The Air Force estimated at first that it roared 79,000 miles into space before falling back earthward, but it later changed the figure to 71,300 miles.

Pioneer II, the third Air Force moon rocket, crashed to earth after traveling 7,500 miles from its Cape Canaveral launching pad Nov. 8. A third-stage rocket failed to fire.

Moscow radio, continuing its description of the moon shot, said:
"At 3:00 a.m. Moscow time on Jan. 3 (7:30 p.m. EST Jan. 2), the cosmic rocket moving toward the moon will pass over the southern part of Sumatra being at a distance of 110,000 kilometers (68,354 miles) from the earth."

Soviet Official May Arrive In N. Y. On Sunday

not give a dinner for the martys of Hungary?"

In all the secrecy, it was still learned on good authority that, unless plans are belatedly changed, the Mikoyan party will be aboard Scandinavian Airlines system Flight 921 arriving at 6:50 a.m. EST at New York's Idlewild International Terminal. The flight is from Copenhagen, Denmark.

These sources said the party will come to Washington almost immediately, either by train, plane or automobile.

One Soviet official who will accompany Mikoyan, Vladimir Burdakov of the Soviet Foreign Ministry, was reported already in New York.

Mikoyan's party thus will include two representatives of the Soviet Trade Ministry, two from the Foreign Ministry and one security man.

Soviet informants said Mikoyan would travel about the United States by train and plane, using commercial transportation, and flying only on long trips. The Soviet Embassy was understood to be making transportation arrangements directly, instead of through the State Department.

Mikoyan was reported ready to spend four or five days in Washington and another 10 or 12 days on tour. However, it was said he had not yet finally approved a proposed itinerary.

He is expected to talk to businessmen, industrialists and farmers during his tour. In Washington no official talks had yet been arranged, although the State Department has said Secretary Dulles would have no official U.S. government greeter would be on hand when Mikoyan arrives Sunday. However, three State Department security experts were ordered to be on hand to help New York police make sure any demonstrations did not get out of hand.

During Mikoyan's tour, at least one State Department security man is to go along. But, as usual with foreign visitors, local police would bear the main burden of keeping order.

Mikoyan is scheduled to address the National Press Club at a Jan. 19 luncheon in Washington. He also is reported considering other engagements.

Havana Trek Is Next For Rebel Chief

from eastern Cuba. They had been expected at any hour, but Castro's broadcast declaration indicated the possibility of a serious hitch.

The shooting centered around a business block called the Manzana de Gomez. It broke out shortly before noon.

Castro's followers rolled tanks, armored cars and other equipment from Camp Columbia, once Batista's firmest military stronghold, to battle armed followers of the fallen dictator. Gunshots hammered through the streets until about 3 p.m.

Though there was talk of 40,000 dead and a total 500 casualties, informed sources emphasized that no accurate count was possible under the conditions prevailing.

After the rebel forces disposed of the bulk of their opponents, they tangled with some of the toughest, most ruthless gunfighters among Batista's followers, members of a private army called the Tigers.

The Tigers have numbered 200 to 300. They were followers of Sen. Roldo Masferrer, a pro-Batista publisher who has fled Havana by yacht, perhaps for Florida. They specialized in killing enemies of the Batista regime and plundering private property of rebel sympathizers.

How many lived through the action is undetermined.

Castro's broadcast declaration from Santiago, his provisional capital, was unexpected. There were signs, within the ranks of various revolutionary organizations who have backed Castro, that something had gone wrong. It appeared obvious there were disagreements over how and who should take power.

"Now is when the revolution starts," Castro said.

The rebel chieftain said he had made a deal with Gen. Cantillo to engineer the handing over of Cuba's government from Batista Wednesday.

Castro accused Cantillo who took over as chief of staff after Batista's departure, of a lack of good faith. He said the agreement mislabeled because Batista and his army chiefs fled the country before dawn on New Year's Day.

Castro said that he had intended that his native city of Santiago should be the provisional capital, and that while it was the chief of army and navy would be there. He was surprised, he added, when he learned that he had been expected in Havana at 2 p.m. New Year's Day. He said that was not what he had planned.

Cantillo still apparently his chief of Cuba's armed forces under provisional President Carlos Piedra. A short-lived military junta appointed Piedra after Batista decided to flee, but he never took the oath of office.

Castro said disparagingly that he would take care of "Old Piedra" and that Piedra would resign when rebels move into Havana if he did not do so before they got here.

Castro said developments had proven that the departure of Batista merely represented a coup d'etat by Batista supporters to take over the government.

During the afternoon thousands of wildly cheering rebel partisans converged in the Central Park hoping and expecting that both Urrutia and Castro would show up and the former promptly be sworn in as provisional president.

Hundreds of American tourists and vacationing students stranded by the cancellation of shipping and air services at last had a chance to get out.

The ocean-going ferry City of Havana steamed in from Key West, Fla., under arrangements made by the U.S. Embassy through the State Department.

About 470 Americans wanted out. The ferry has a capacity of 500. Armed rebel squads escorted carloads of Americans from hotels to the waterfront.

Three U.S. warships and two auxiliary vessels stood off the Cuban coast, ready to take out any other Americans if necessary.

All airlines had ceased flying for the moment. Havana's airport was closed to civilians during the day.

Young armed partisans roamed the streets, firing wildly and breaking into buildings.

They looked for weapons. Herded to police stations were hundreds of suspected supporters of Batista, who quit the presidency and fled to the Dominican Republic Thursday under rebel military pressure.

Police stood idly by as the partisans began filling up the jails with their suspects. All orders to army and police leaders installed at Camp Columbia, the army headquarters in a Havana suburb.

The first incident involving Americans came Friday morning when rebels opened fire on the Havana Post, English language newspaper where the Havana bureau of the Associated Press has its office.

Rebels looking for weapons burst inside and arrested three Associated Press men—Larry Allen, George Kaufman and Harold Valentine. They were taken to a police station and released after questioning.

All but forgotten in the swift tide of events was Supreme Court Justice Carlos Piedra. He was named provisional president by the short-lived military junta that succeeded Batista in Havana. Castro vetoed Piedra as an acting president.

Instead, Castro called a general strike to persist until Urrutia is installed pending new elections.

In the 25-month revolt that Castro has waged, he has called general strikes that fizzled. This time the strike call paralyzed this Caribbean island.

moon. In urging an all-out U.S. effort, it said:

"The international effect of successful lunar probes, both in terms of science and world prestige, would be highly beneficial to this nation," it said.

The Defense Department said it knew before the Moscow radio announcement that the Russians had launched a moon rocket. While it did not elaborate, a spokesman later indicated it was being tracked by radio.

Rep. James G. Fulton (R-Pa.) reported to the committee that the Air Force has on hand at Cape Canaveral two moon rockets not presently scheduled for use.

The committee unanimously approved a resolution proposed by Fulton that the rockets be scheduled for launching in attempts to reach the moon at the earliest possible time.

manned by Castro men, the vanguards of rebel guerrillas made their unheralded appearance in Havana.

They came roaring into the city from the east in trucks along the main central highway from Las Villas province, where the first big battle of the revolution was fought at Santa Clara. It was this battle with its heavy army losses that apparently convinced Batista that his long day as Cuba's strongman was ended.

Other guerrillas drove in from Matanzas, the province next door to Havana on the east.

At the head of the columns were two of Castro's field commanders—Ernest Guevara, a leftist physician from Argentina, and Camilo Cienfuegos.

The columns made their way along the boulevard on the waterfront and headed out to military headquarters at Camp Columbia.

The streets of Havana were quiet in the early morning hours after the day and night of looting and shooting that exploded from the first joyous celebrations over Batista's downfall.

The streets were left to the Castro partisans who had sprung up in the capital with Batista's downfall. Wearing the red and black armbands of the Castro movement they patrolled streets and carried out Castro's orders for stern punishment of looters.

As the day wore on, crowds of joyriders flying the Cuban flag began filling the streets. Crowds stood along sidewalks. Everyone seemed to be in a holiday mood.

Then the streets turned dangerous for Cubans and foreigners alike as squads of young Castro sympathizers began their hunt for the enemies of the revolutionary movement.

Havana's radio warned partisans that there was unnecessary shooting in the capital.

Judge Jesse S. Heard, serving Ouachita - Morehouse parishes in area court, has announced he will not seek post on the new Second Circuit Court of Appeals. To serve thus he would have to move to Shreveport, which he declines to do.

Talkathon
Just to be doing something a bit unusual, a West Monroe store staged at the past weekend as a New Year stunt, a talkathon for women. They were set to talk through Friday and on Saturday until late at night. Did not hear how it all ended, but women were given privilege to talk on any subject, but they had to continue it until they lost out on words to repeat to their listening public when another woman would take over until she ran out of conversation.

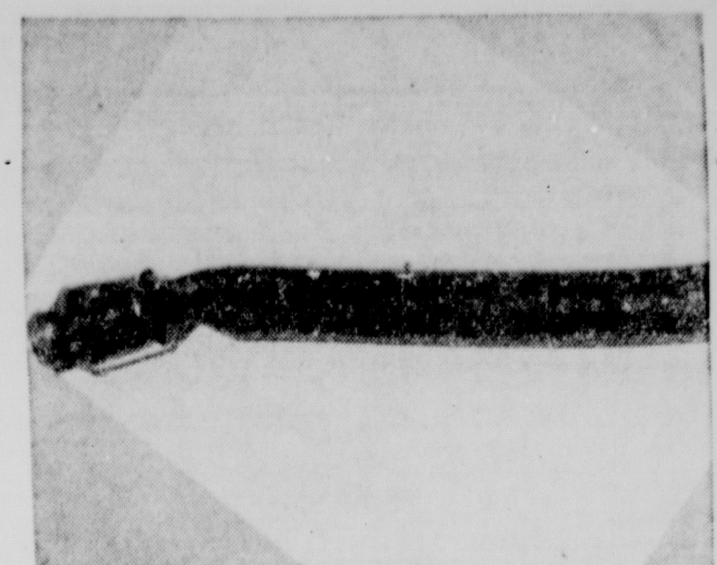

Highway
While he did not specify exact details, as concerns the Twin Cities, District Highway Engineer Wayne Huckabee, the end of the past week, declared that the right of way through the Twin Cities for the big new U. S. highway has been mapped and will be next placed at the disposal of the state and U. S. Highway Engineers for further action.

Much work has been accomplished the past fall and the work has proceeded well, states Engineer Huckabee.

Call
It was just a friendly New Year call. It came to Miss Ruth Bennett, daughter of the late Dr. Bennett, for years a prominent local physician, and the speaker, then in Rome, Italy, was her brother, Clayton Bennett, now affiliated with aviation overseas. He expressed pleasure to hear his sister's voice.

New Year's Prayer
No New Year's resolutions, Lord,
Just a humble prayer from me,
That I may, this New Year, live
Every day closer to Thee
May I walk with Thee, and feel Thy spirit,
That I may help those in sorrow and need,
May I hide Thy words in my heart,
That I may not sin against Thee
May I remember Thy great commandment,
That I will love Thee with all my heart, soul and mind,
May I strive for the greater prize,
That I may be more Christ like
May I be burdened for the lost,
That I may point some soul to Thee,
May I do Thy Holy will,
That Thy Son may be glorified
May I not depend on self for strength,
For all strength cometh from Thee,
That I may remember the power of prayer,
That makes my life secure
May I not be slack in thought and deed,
But be always ready,
That I may grow in grace, knowledge, and wisdom,
And walk that narrow path with Thee,
May I give to Thee Thy portion

BEATING WEAPON — Richland Parish Sheriff Earl Hill last night allowed newsmen to photograph this 14-inch section of a gas pump hose which he identified as the weapon used in the Monday beating-robbery of George Perkins, 83-year-old shopowner in Rayville. A "John Doe" murder warrant was issued when the aged man died Tuesday. Hill said the hose evidently had been carried for some time as a weapon and made an appeal to Northeast Louisiana residents hoping some person had seen the hose before the robbery. OF MERCHANT WHO DIED
Many Questioned In Robbery, Beating

RAYVILLE (Special) — Richland Parish Sheriff Earl Hill said last night a "dozen or more suspects" had been questioned and released since the Monday evening robbery-beating of an aged storekeeper there who died in a Monroe hospital about 30 hours later.

His death brought forth a murder warrant.
Hill said that his deputies and lawmen in several parishes had picked up suspects almost daily and were continuing to run down leads in the case.

The case began about 5 p.m. Monday when George Perkins, 83, was slugged repeatedly on the head and a white man was seen leaving Perkins' store where the victim was left bleeding on the floor.

The fleeing man was chased a quarter of a mile, but lost in downtown Rayville.

WARRANT
District Attorney Carey Ellis Jr., issued a "John Doe" warrant charging murder soon after the robbery victim died.

Authorities said earlier that about $500 had been taken in the daylight robbery.

However Hill said he still was considering strongly that whoever committed the robbery and beating was a stranger.

The sheriff said this theory was backed by reports from the victim that he did not recognize his assailant and from the several persons who saw the fleeing robber.

Hill made an appeal last night to persons in the Northeast Louisiana area to report any clue pertaining to the weapon used in the beating.

The sheriff allowed newsmen to photograph the 14-inch black metal tipped gas pump hose which pursuers reported seeing the fleeing man toss into weeds.

Hill said it was obvious that the hose had been carried for some time and that it was highly possible that someone may have seen it. He pointed out that the hose was well worn by having been carried by someone, apparently as a weapon.

Police Continue Hunt For Suspect In Safe Burglary

Authorities are continuing their hunt for the persons or person who pulled a $1,000 safe cracking caper at Gentry's Dixie Dandy grocery in West Monroe Tuesday night.

The intruders, whom officers termed as "professionals" battered their way into the market from an adjoining store and blew open the safe, leaving silver and checks scattered about the floor.

Haze Gentry, owner of the store, said he had just taken several thousand dollars from the safe and deposited it in a bank before the robbery. The money represented proceeds from the sale of cattle.

My time, my talent, my tithe,
That I may rejoice in my salvation,
And walk continuously in Thy light,
May I seek not earthly wealth,
But place my faith on things above,
That I may receive abundant pardon,
Thy spiritual blessings, and Thy love
May I have a love for all mankind,
And may I remember each day, Thy Son,
That I may have peace throughout this New Year,

SHINING STARS are the decorative lighting device used by expert consultant Richard Kelly to lend a romantic air to his own living room. The "stars" are tiny bulbs strung on light wire and attached to the back of the vertical burlap blinds placed floor to ceiling in

Shedding New Light On An Old Problem

By BETTY PEPIS

To correctly light a room at night, you should approximate the various degrees and intensities of light that filter into it during the day. So says Richard Kelly, an architecturally trained lighting expert, who has planned the illumination for such spectacular public places as New York City's Museum of Modern Art and the striking new Seagram Building.

The reason for this, according to Mr. Kelly, is that in a well-planned room certain areas are arranged for conversation, others for reading and working. Functional light should be appropriately available in such areas for both day and night activities. Light changes color, too, and the color balance of a room can be spoiled if the placement of night light differs greatly from the natural daylight the room normally receives.

For this reason, this expert, like many others, often conceals intensive light in the area of the windows. This can be inexpensively achieved by a single row of ordinary bulbs (like those around an actor's mirror) placed under a simple cornice board above the window. A second method: Put like contraption that, if covered with leather or wallpaper, would light fixtures on the floor and aim their light at the wall behind the draperies (preferably white, off-white or cream).

Farmers Complain About Too Many City Visitors

By ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: I'm a slightly plump housewife, age 37. Our three children are in school all day and I love to putter around the house, put up strawberry jam, read good books, and even take a nap if I feel like it. I worked for six years after we married and it's a treat to be able to stay at home and live a leisurely life.

Most of the women in this neighborhood have part-time jobs. Some work from 9 till 5. The other day a friend told me of a part-time job in the neighborhood book store and the salary was $30 a week. My husband thought it would be a "good idea" because we could use the extra money.

I turned it down saying I preferred to put up with the sun-split curtains and rather worn furniture and just go along enjoying my unhurried and uncomplicated life.

Am I crazy because I have no burning desire for wall-to-wall carpeting and a glassed-in sun porch? Tell me the truth—C.C.S. Crazy? Not at all.

If you like your life as it is why change it? I salute you—your strawberry jam and the sun-split curtains. The world is filled with people who are knocking themselves to pieces to own "better" things. Often they learn too late that the price was higher than they had anticipated—and it wasn't worth it. People can live on less—when they have more to live for.

DEAR ANN: I've been reading your column for a long time and I've noticed many letters from city people who complain because relatives drop in on them all the time. They seem to think if people live a distance, and their place is hard to get to, they'd be safe from mooching friends and relatives.

I'd like to tell you what our experience has been. My husband is a farmer at heart. We farmed the first five years of our marriage. We'd have made a go of it if it hadn't been for our "friends" and relations. We didn't have one Sunday to ourselves in five years. We never knew who'd show up next. Often three and four carloads would

Such general overall lighting must, quite obviously, be supplemented by specific lamps for close work or reading. The current rage for over-tall lamps, and low-slung sofas makes these hard to arrange for comfort today. To work well the shade must completely cover the bulb when the reader is in a seated position. Low lamp tables will help solve this—but careful measuring and testing is advisable.

The romance of lighting and its mood-setting qualities are all too often ignored according to Mr. Kelly. Luxtrol light controls are included in all his electrical plans in order to dim or brighten the over-all room on special occasions. At the height of a party, for example, a room flooded with brilliant light helps maintain the animation of the guests. Dim them down to get the guests into dinner, and turn them up again as a reminder to go home. These are tricks any hostess with a dimmer has learned.

Such devices, long a part of theatrical lighting, are just now finding a place in the home. The whole system is easy to install and controls fit into a small box-window. A second method: Put like contraption that, if covered with leather or wallpaper, would light fixtures on the floor and aim their light at the wall behind the draperies (preferably white, off-white or cream).

GROSSCUP, HUMPHREY

Leading Passers Of 1957, 1958 To Start Senior Bowl

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—Opposing North and South coaches Friday night tabbed for starting duties Saturday's Senior Bowl football game the nation's leading passer last season and his counterpart this year.

After leaning to Boston College's Don Allard in practice this week, North Coach Joe Kuharich of Notre Dame switched over to Lee Grosscup of Utah as his probable starter at quarterback.

Grosscup, who is the first draft choice of the New York pro Giants, led the nation in passes in 1957 with 94 completions of 17 attempts and 1,398 yards. He has been bothered by a shoulder injury this season and tapered off to 66 of 121 for 820 yards.

Allard also can move the ball through the air. His passes netted 691 yards for Boston College last season and he was the first round choice of the Washington Redskins, from which Kuharich resigned as head coach to take the Notre Dame post.

There was no question as to South Coach Paul Brown's starter at quarterback. Baylor's Buddy Humphrey, who tossed five touch-down passes in the North-South Shrine game at Miami, had been the No. 1 man from the start of practice.

Humphrey was the top passer in the country this season with 112 completions out of 195 and 1,316 yards. He was the second round choice of the Los Angeles Rams in the early pro draft.

Stacey of Mississippi State, Don Brown of Houston and Theron Sapp of Georgia operating with him in the No. 1 offensive backfield.

Rounding out the North starting backfield are Joe Morrison of Cincinnati, Alan Miller of Boston College, and Norm Odyne of Notre Dame.

Two Notre Dame players are on the starting North forewall, end Bob Wetoska and tackle Fank Geremia. Others on the starting Yankee line are end Gary Prahst, Michigan; guard Mike Rabold, Indiana; center Dan James, Ohio State; guard Sal Cesario, Denver; and tackle Dick Schafrath, Ohio State.

Brown's starting forewall includes ends Bob Pepe, North Carolina State, and Jim Wood, Oklahoma State; tackles Vel Heckman, Florida, and Jim McFall, Florida; guards Phil Blazer, North Carolina, and Fred Cole, Maryland; center, Milt Crain, Mississippi.

Rabold, the Indiana guard, was named offensive co-captain for the North and Gene Selawski, Purdue tackle, co-captain on defense.

Humphrey is co-captain for the South on offense, and Bobby Renn Florida State halfback, on defense.

The North Starters, counting 258-pound James, have a 224-pound average to the Southerners' 221 pounds.

The oddsmakers favor the South by one touchdown.

The weather bureau forecast more cloudy skies for Saturday but said light, occasional rain might end before the 3 p.m. EST kickoff.

The 50 players turn pro in the game. Members of the winning club receive $300 each, the losers $400 each. Of the 50 men, 24 already have been drafted by pro teams and most of the rest are expected to be drawn when the draft is resumed this month.

The game will be televised nationally by NBC with a blackout within a 100-mile radius of Mobile.

Mo. Valley In 59-58 Victory Over SE La.

HAMMOND, La. (AP)—Bill Thibault pumped in a perfect jump basket with only two seconds remaining in the game to send Missouri Valley to a 59-58 victory over Southeastern Louisiana Friday night.

SLC led 28-23 at the half but the visitors came back to knot the count midway the second period at 44-43.

In the closing minutes, the score was tied at 56-56 and 57-57 before SLC slipped ahead, 58-57, with five seconds to play.

Ron Closterman and Jesse Shanks, who had 14 points each for SLC, shared scoring honors.

Bill Ball, with 12 points led Missouri Valley.

Mountaineer Cagers Rout Yale, 80-52

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (AP)—West Virginia stymied Yale with a pressing defense and brilliant early shooting Friday night to set up an 80-52 victory, Coach Fred Schaus' 100th at the Mountaineers helm.

It was 11th-ranked West Virginia's ninth triumph of the year against three defeats, Yale, which saw its record slip to 2-7, headed home after four straight losses on the road.

Jerry West and Bob Smith, each with 20 points, led the Mountaineer attack. Schaus pulled the last of his regulars from the game with 8½ minutes to play and the score 60-45.

Smith missed his first two shots and then poured in eight straight, seven of them in the first half, to lead the Mountaineers to a 48-26 edge at the intermission.

He finished up with eight goals in 11 shots. West, who pulled down 19 rebounds, slapped in eight of 13 shots from the floor.

Allan Pond had 10 points for Yale.

Willie Akers' three-point play gave West Virginia a 4-1 bulge with 1:51 playing. Yale, hitting from the outside, pulled within 18 points at 50-68 with about six minutes of the game remaining but again dropped back.

MARA WAS WHITE NEW YORK (AP)—The tab on his lapel said "Jack Mara, Football Giant," but he actually was "Jack White, Baseball Yankee." When football scout Jack Leake succumbed to a heart attack, Mara, president of the football Giants, asked White to attend Look's football party to meet Buddy Dial who was being honored.

Dial, star end for the Rice Owls, had been drafted the previous week by the football Giants. The San Francisco 49ers, for whom White is a scout, were out of the running for the National Football League crown so White did the Giants a favor by telling Dial how good the Giants would be in 1959.

AT OUACHITA

Arkansas State Teachers Meet Indians Here Tonight

Northeast, its home court winning streak broken and starting forward Ronald Doyle ailing, meets Arkansas State Teachers College tonight in the old Ouachita gym in their 1959 debut.

Lenny Fant's Redmen will be seeking to even their record at 6-6 tonight and hope to push over the 500 mark with a victory over the 53 triumph over Northeast Oklahoma in a first round tournament game, at Ouachita before bowing to Lamar Tech.

Doyle, along with reserve guard J. B. Edmiston and team manager Benn Hollis, has been suffering from an upset stomach caused by a virus infection for the past several days. Doyle missed Thursday's practice session but worked out briefly yesterday. Edmiston hasn't worked out for a couple of days.

If Doyle isn't able to start, Fant indicated he would start Fred Bradley in his place.

Doyle's absence would hurt Northeast badly on the boards. The 6-3 junior is one of only two regular Indians over six feet.

Fant indicated Doyle would probably play although he may not start.

Northeast will again depend heavily on 6-6 center Billy May on boards. The Grayson center turned in one of his greatest games against Lamar Tech, smashing the school record by grabbing 28, breaking the old mark of 25 set by Bill Bradley in 1955.

May took 16 of his 28 rebound off the offensive backboard for the record in that department, topping the old mark of 13 set by Bennett in 1954.

The Christmas Tournament, an artistic success and financial failure, saw two games of its four games decided by two-point margins and another settled in an overtime period.

Small crowds viewed both tournament sessions and Fant said the school took a financial loss. However, the Indian mentor said the school hoped to promote another tourney next season.

Troy Spigner put in 18 points for Bastrop boys in the romp over Oak Ridge and Smith led the losers with 12. John Yeldell got 13 points for Mer Rouge while Norman Pace shot in 17 for Linville.

Jones scored 18 points for Wilmet girls but Bastrop's Norma Jean Brown was the game's top scorer with 26 points. Sue Price led Ouachita with 16 points and Gail McKoin got 13 for Bonita.

Ouachita girls will play Linville at 10 and Wilmet faces Mer Rouge at 11:15 this morning in semi-final games. Boys semi-final games will have Bastrop meeting West Monroe at 1:30 p.m. and Ouachita playing Mer Rouge at 2:40.

The girls finals will be played at 7 and the boys at 8:15.

FOR WHITE SOX

Veck Evidently Completes Deal

CHICAGO (AP)—Sale of controlling interest in the Chicago White Sox to baseball's executive-in-motion, Bill Veck, seemingly only lacked official confirmation Friday.

Delay in announcement of the sale, it appeared, was caused by an effort by Veck's syndicate to buy out the minority holdings of Chuck Comiskey, Sox vice president, or achieve a meeting of minds with Chuck on club operations.

The Chicago Tribune said in today's edition it had learned Mrs. Dorothy Comiskey Rigney, Chuck's sister, already has sold the 3,235 shares she controls to Veck. Chuck owns or controls 2,735 shares, the remainder of the club holdings.

Although spokesmen for Mrs. Rigney denied completion of the sale and contended negotiations still are in progress, an informed source said "It's all out and dried."

Veck, donning an unaccustomed mantle of silence, was permitting the sale or lack of it to be threshed out in the newspapers. A club evaluation of $5,000,000 has been mentioned, in which case Mrs. Rigney's shares would be worth about $2,700,000.

Veck has not inked the make-up of his syndicate, but reportedly it includes former major league star, Hank Greenberg, who recently sold his minority stock in the Cleveland Indians.

It was learned Comiskey held an option until 10 days ago to buy out his sister, but that it and Dorothy's patience ran out. There has been a rift between the two since Chuck started legal proceedings more than a year ago involving settlement of the estate of their mother, the late Mrs. Grace Comiskey.

However, Chuck last night said "I still have hopes of buying Dorothy's stock. I can raise the money. I thought we were close on one offer I made, and then the Veck news broke. The White Sox always have been in the Comiskey family and I hope to keep them there. I will not be squeezed."

Chuck conceded that the American League's other club owners could do nothing to prevent Veck from buying into an established franchise. "That would be a private deal," he said. But the 32-year-old grandson of Charles (Old Roman) Comiskey, who founded the club, asserted the league never would permit Veck to transfer the Sox franchise to another city.

When he owned the St. Louis Browns, Veck was blocked by the American League in efforts to switch the Browns first to Milwaukee and then to Baltimore.

Veck, son of the former president of the Chicago Cubs, was identified by the Tribune as having long range plans calling for sale of Comiskey Park on Chicago's South Side.

The Tribune mentioned the possibility the Sox might shift to Soldier Field, the huge lake front arena near downtown Chicago. On this subject, Veck said:

"Soldier Field would be the world's worst place to play baseball. Not only have I not given a thought to Soldier Field, I've not given a thought to giving a thought about it."

Texas Directors

To Vote On New Cities For Loop

DALLAS (AP)—Harlingen and Amarillo both accepted Texas League provisions Friday and league directors will vote on which will become the sixth member of the Class AA circuit.

League President Dick Butler said he would submit the issue to the directors immediately and hoped to have a decision by Saturday.

Amarillo, formerly in the Western League, has averaged 90,000 plus in attendance the past five years.

The league will meet with the Mexican League at San Antonio Jan. 14 to work out the plan of interleague competition and then hold its annual meeting at Corpus Christi Jan. 15-16.

Round Table Favored In Arcadia Race

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Travis M. Kerr's Round Table, the turf's all-time leading money winner and 1958 Horse of the Year, topped a field of 10 runners entered in the $50,000 added Santa Carlos Handicap at Santa Anita Park Saturday.

The sturdy 5-year-old will be ridden by his regular pilot, Willie Shoemaker, and will carry high weight of 132 pounds over the seven-furlong route.

Named opposite Round Table were such threats as C. W. Smith's Hillsdale, impressive winner of the Malibu Stakes last week and Neil S. McCarthy's Seaneen, the Irish-bred who upset Round Table in the $100,000 Californian at Hollywood Park last summer.

Others in the field are Mrs. Mabel Scholtz' Warhead, a highly rated invader from New York; Elobee Farm's Eddie Schmidt, Poltex Stables' Terrang, Llangollen Farm's Nashville, Bert Martin's The Searcher, Raoul Walsh's Bounty Bay and the King Ranch's Golden Notes, winner of the Palos Verdes Handicap a week ago.

The San Carlos will be Round Table's first start since winning the $100,000 added Hawthorne gold cup last October. The win sent the Table's total earnings to $1,336,364 and his purses for the year to $662,780.

Round Table went to the post 20 times in 1958, winning 14 races. He raced at nine tracks in five states and once at Caliente in Tijuana, Mexico. He also broke or equaled seven course records.

Round Table mopped up at the Santa Anita meeting a year ago. He won five straight stakes, including the $100,000 added Santa Anita Maturity for 4-year-olds and the $100,000 added Santa Anita Handicap.

Saturday he'll spot the field 17 or more pounds. Second high weight is 115, assigned to Terrang, Hillsdale and Seaneen.

If all 10 start, the San Carlos will gross $56,400 and the winner will net $33,300.

Crazylegs To Play In Hula Bowl Sunday

HONOLULU (AP)—Former backfield ace Elroy (Crazylegs) Hirsch said Friday he would come out of retirement to play in Sunday's Hula Bowl game for his Hawaii All-Stars.

Hirsch is coach of the pro-augmented Hawaii All-Stars who will meet the College All-Stars in the 13th renewal of the game.

The former Los Angeles Rams back, who retired after the 1957 season, said he decided to play after Rams halfback Ron Waller pulled a leg muscle in practice.

"With Ron Waller a doubtful starter, I'll just have to get in the game and play as long as possible," Hirsch said. "I am happy to say that I'm in good shape."

Tallulah Dominates A Team; Stovall On AAA

By BOB ANDERSON
Monroe Morning World
(Written for La. Sports Writers Association)

Three teams, headed by powerful Tallulah, state champion for the second year in a row, dominated the class A all-state team selected by the Louisiana Sports Writers Association.

Coach Racer Holstead's Tallulah machine placed three players on the first team, fullback Danny Neumann, center Perry Beard and guard Billy Foster.

Two teams, St. Francis, state runner-up, and Mansfield placed two players each on the first team. St. Francis had tackle Adonis Toups and guard Jimmy St. John on the first team and Mansfield's representatives were tackle Alex Monsour and quarterback Gary Moore.

The remainder of the team is composed of Slidell end L. V. McGinty, LaSalle flankman Jack Womack and halfbacks Randy Rushing of Denham Springs and Raymond Eddy of Coushatta.

One of the biggest selected, the all-star line averages 198 pounds per man despite a lightweight in St. John, the line's baby at 165 pounds. The two tackles, Toups (265) and Monsour (220) provide a lot of the poundage.

The backfield averages 173 pounds with Neumann and Eddy the big boys at 185 and quarterback Moore the lightest member at 146.

Neumann, despite missing two games because of injuries, climaxed a great career with another outstanding season. One of the most highly publicized class A backs in state history, the Tallulah fullback scored 144 points in 12 games and gained 1,426 yards rushing for a sparkling 8.25 average.

Rushing, a 175-pounder with a very appropriate name, was the state leading scorer with 27 touchdowns and one PAT for a total of 163 points, all scored in only 10 games. He racked up 1,420 yards rushing.

Eddy, a younger brother of Emmett Eddy, Northwestern star and a former all-star, scored 149 points for Coushatta's district 1-A team in 10 regular season contests and one playoff tilt. He ran 135 times for 1,419 yards and a 10.5 average.

Moore, the catalyst in a high-scoring Mansfield attack, counted 66 points on 11 touchdowns. Moore was an all-district 1-A end in 1957 before he began pitching strikes instead of catching them.

Womack, the only junior on the all-state team, was also the only junior on the all-district 1-A honor club and one of only two players, third team end John Norman of Coushatta was the other, to make the 1957 1-A all-star team for the first time. Sixteen years old, Womack was outstanding on offense and defense.

The team's tallest member at 6-4, McGinty used his height to good advantage as a pass receiver and was one of the state's most outstanding offensive flankmen as well as a hard-to-fool defender.

Toups is, at 265 pounds, big enough for the pros and played like one. The giant lineman was almost immovable on defense and a devastating blocker on offense.

Toups' companion at tackle, Monsour, was a unanimous choice for the all-district 1-A team and earned his all-state laurels with powerful defensive work that stamped him as one of the state's top linemen regardless of class.

Foster and St. John, the all-state guards, were two of the top reasons Tallulah and St. Francis reached the state finals.

Foster, fast, aggressive and big enough at 190 pounds, teamed with all-state center Perry Beard to spark Tallulah's line in their team's march to its second state championship in a row. Foster realized a lineman's dream by scoring a touchdown on an early-season dash with a recovered fumble.

St. John had another great year at guard for St. Francis. The stocky 165-pounder made up for his lack of weight with speed and drive. He and the 265-pound Toups gave St. Francis' a feared "David and Goliath" punch in the forward wall.

Beard, an all-district 2-A choice in 1957 and a unanimous pick this season, gave Tallulah experience and great ability at the center position. A quick, smart line-backer, Beard was also a bruising blocker on offense and an accurate passer in punting situations.

All members of the Louisiana Sports Writers Association were automatic nominees for the all-state team and all-all-play champions in 10 regular season contests and one playoff tilt. He ran 135 times for 1,419 yards and a 10.5 average.

Moore, the catalyst in a high-scoring Mansfield attack, counted 66 points on 11 touchdowns. Moore was an all-district 1-A end in 1957 before he began pitching strikes instead of catching them.

New state champion Lake Charles and deposed king Istrouma each placed two players on the triple-A all-state football team selected by the Louisiana Sports Writers Association.

The Wildcats on the mythical squad are end Jack Gates and fullback Darrell Lester, both of whom played key roles in Lake Charles' tingling 22-20 triumph over Warren Easton in the playoff finals.

Istrouma is represented on the all-senior squad by end Don McDollister and Houdini-like quarterback Lynn Amedee.

Joining Lester and Amedee in the all-state backfield are halfbacks Pete Ascani of Easton and Jerry Stovall of West Monroe. Ascani, the top triple-A scorer in Louisiana with 156 points, tallied twice — once on a glittering 68-yard scamper — in the Eagles' loss to Lake Charles.

The first line, in addition to McDollister and Gates, lists Holly Cross' Pete Calamari and Lafayette's Dan Hartzett at tackles, Jesuit's Parker Hudson and Baton Rouge's Gary Kinchem at guards and Bossier City's David Dow at center.

The ends, Gates and McDollister, were splendid defensive performers in addition to being line offensive blockers and pass-grabbers.

Calamari, a 225-pound terror and 200-pound Hartzett were hard-hitting tackle standouts in their respective forward walls.

Guards Hudson of Jesuit and Kinchem of Baton Rouge were both agile and powerful. Hudson was the Blue Jay captain.

Dow at center was probably

North Louisiana's best lineman, sparking both on offense and defense.

Amedee discarded an early season injury and almost quarterbacked Istrouma to an unprecedented fourth straight state crown. Only a 20-18 loss to Lake Charles in the playoff semifinals marred the Indian record.

Halfbacks Ascani and Stovall were both swifts and the offensive spearheads of Easton and West Monroe, respectively.

Completing the all-state first eleven is fullback Lester, a 200-pound mass of piling-driving might. Lester hammered over for the winning Wildcat TD against Istrouma and then scored twice against Easton in the triple-A showdown.

Named to the second team line were ends Joe Spano of St. Aloysius and Jerry Barton of Fair Park, tackles Lou Gentry of Easton and Bob Hucklebridge of Bossier, guards Johnny Marshall of Easton and John Khoury of Lake Charles and center Doug Gleason of Terrebonne.

Terrebonne's Tommy Thompson quarterbacked the second backfield which also included Istrouma's versatile Steve Ward, Bossier's fleet Henry Brown and Bossier's sophomore flash Pat Screen.

The third team forward wall was Baton Rouge's Brent Womack and Jesuit's Ray Ward at ends, Jesuit's Ray Rizzo and Ouachita's Harold Moore at tackles, Redemptorist's Errol Marchese and LaGrange's Howard McCann at guards and Istrouma's Malcolm Fleming at center.

The third backfield includes Larry King of Holy Cross, Ronnie Clayton of Bolton, Carroll LeBlanc of West Jefferson and Lonnie Harper of Fair Park.

EX-CHAMPION

Bulla Leads LA Tournery With 64

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Easy-going Johnny Bulla of Phoenix, Ariz., who won the event in 1941, knocked out a 7-under par 64 Friday for the lead in the first round of the $35,000 Los Angeles Open golf tournament.

A sensation on the sun-baked greens of the 7,000-yard Rancho Golf Club, the 44-year-old ex-airline pilot toured the par 36-35-71 layout with a superb 31-31-64.

Winners of four sectional tournaments in recent weeks, Johnny's score gave him a lead of two strokes over a pair of newcomers to golf prominence, 23-year-old John McMullin of Alameda, Calif., with a 35-31-66, and Doug Sanders of Miami Beach, Fla., with a 31-35-66.

The 1958 winner, Frank Stranahan, fell back with a 74. One of the pre-tournament picks, Ken Venturi, took a 72.

Stocky Billy Maxwell of Texas was alone with a 67, and two former National Open champions, Julius Boros and Jack Fleck, were tied with 68s. Tommy Bolt, the reigning U. S. Open king, had a 69, and was deadlocked with four other contenders, Lloyd Mangrum, Mike Souchak, Howie Johnson of Glenwood, Ill., and Joe E. Campbell of Knoxville, Tenn.

Bill Casper of Chula Vista, Calif., another pre-tournament favorite, settled in the 70 group, along with Dow Finsterwald, Bo Winingier, Fred Hawkins, Gene Little and several other lesser knowns.

Bulla, has won the Southwest PGA, the Arizona Open, the Southern California PGA and the Southern California Open in recent weeks.

He sank one putt for 40 feet to start off on the first green, holed a 20-footer on the sixth and eighth and a 6-footer on the ninth. His only bad hole was a bogey 4 when he missed a short putt on the third.

On the back side, Bulla holed a 10-foot putt on the 11th, a 6-footer on the 13th and his approach to the pin on the 16th left him with a 7-inch tap, which he made. He closed the round with a birdie putt from 10-feet on the 18th.

McMullin, who failed to qualify for this tournament last year in his first try at the pro circuit, chipped in from 35 feet for a birdie three on the 10th.

Sanders, red hot on the first side, took a bogey four on the 17th but thrilled the gallery when he sent the ball some 90 feet across the green for a birdie three.

AXYDLBAAXR Is LONG FELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Firm Agrees On Refund To Settle Claim

WASHINGTON (UPI)—General Motors Corp. has agreed to refund $9,908,000 to settle a government claim that the company was overpaid on a 1952 Air Force contract for jet planes, the Justice Department announced Friday.

Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers said the company agreed to pay $4,908,000 to satisfy the government's claim that General Motors over-estimated its costs in re-pricing negotiations with the Air Force in 1954.

In addition, he said, the company voluntarily returned another five million dollars to cover alleged excess profits on the deal.

In agreeing to the settlement, the department said, General Motors "insisted that it had not willfully made any misrepresentations of its costs" during its 1954 talks with the Air Force.

The department said the $4,908,000 refund was negotiated on the basis of the difference between the company's estimated and actual cost in carrying out the contract.

Asst. Atty. Gen. George Cochran Doub, who handled the case for the department, said the government overpaid General Motors $3,118,000 as a result of accounting errors and "misstatements of cost" in the company's pricing proposals.

Entitled To Extra Money

He said the government was entitled to the extra $1,800,000 under the provisions of a law authorizing the government to recover more than the total actual damage.

The contract called for the production of about 900 F84 jet airplanes. The planes were constructed at the Kansas City, Kan., plant of the company's Buick-Oldsmobile-Pontiac Division.

Chairman Edward F. Hebert (D-La.) of a House armed services subcommittee which investigated the contract, had contended that General Motors owed the government about 17 million dollars.

He said last month his subcommittee "will never be satisfied except with repayment, penny - by penny."

Annual wheat production of the United States and Soviet Russia approximately equal each other.

COTTON

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures closed 20 cents to $1.85 a bale higher Friday. Trading was fairly active and featured buying of old crop months which had recently been under liquidating pressure. A good part of the demand was believed to be replacement buying by traders who liquidated futures holdings in recent sessions.

Some market analysts also held the view that the heavy movement of cotton into the government loan will eventually tighten free market supplies of the staple.

The Commodity Credit Corp. reported that cotton loans for the week ended Dec. 26 were 273,105 bales with the net loan stock of 1958 crop on that date at 4,773,608 bales.

Futures closed 20 cents to $1.85 a bale higher than the previous close.

The census bureau reported that apparel wool consumption in the U.S. during November averaged 4,354,000 pounds weekly compared with 4,200,000 during October and a 29 per cent increase over November 1957.

At the same time consumption of man made fibers in November declined modestly from October. These figures brought out scattered trade short covering and a little new commission house buying with offerings generally firm. London futures were also firm advancing about one penny on trade short covering which appeared to reflect in part a fair amount of actual business.

Both New York and London markets closed near their highs for day with volume moderate. Australian auctions will resume on January 12.

Near months advanced approximately 1.50 a bale in what appeared to be chiefly professional buying. There was small trade covering on the opening but New Orleans commission houses provided the main buying.

The market has recently shown some stability after a 2 1/2 cent decline indicating a technical rally was likely. There was some trade selling on a scale up but not heavy.

New crops lagged as December parity failed to show an increase. Loan entries for the week ending December 26 were only 265,000 bales. Certified stock was expected to show a small decrease due to one firm withdrawing some for export purposes. Unfixed call sales 51,300 bales which is a record low figure.

Hong Kong announced an agreement has been filed with Great Britain to limit sale of textiles to that country for a period of 3 years at around 120 million yards per year.

Rails Attain Best Levels Since Nov. 7

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rails, a neglected group in the 1958 year-end market rally, started the new year right by breaking through the mid-November highs to their best levels since Nov. 7, 1956.

The rails paced a generally higher but somewhat less active market which featured, also, selected auto stocks, steels, chemicals and a host of miscellaneous issues.

The autos, helped by reports of record December output, ran up gains of 3 1/2 points in Ford, 2% in Chrysler. Airlines got a lift from settlement of Eastern Air Lines' protracted strike. Eastern closed with a gain of a major fraction. American and Northwest were up around a point.

The collapse of the Batista government in Cuba was reflected in gains of over 2 points each in Consolidated Railroads of Cuba and Cuba Railroad preferred issues and in the sugar stocks.

Heavy selling developed in sugar futures markets. Stocks of Cuban sugar producers rose sharply while others were sold. West Indies gained over 3. Vertientes more than a point. Great Western and South Porto Rico fell 2.

There were gains of over 5 points in Eastman Kodak, nearly 2 in Du Pont. Aircrafts had improvement running to a point or 2 in North American, Cessna and Republic. American Home Products gained nearly 3 in the perqs. American Distilling and National Distillers close to 2 each in the liquors. Colgate 4 in the soaps. Bestwall Gypsum 4 1/2 in the building suppliers and Zenith held 3 1/4 points in the Electronics. U.S. Steel met late demand which lifted it 2 points.

Low priced Electric & Musical Industries when issued was the day's most active stock, up 1/2 at 9 1/2. Benguet Consolidated followed, up 1/2 at 1 1/2, and General Motors was third, up 1/2 at 50 1/2.

Gains in rails ran close to 2 points in Baltimore & Ohio and Rock Island, a point or more in Illinois Central, New York Central, Atlantic Coast Line.

Utilities had gains around a point in Cleveland Electric, Consolidated Natural Gas and Southern California Edison; a drop of nearly one in Commonwealth Edison.

Volume of 3,380,000 shares for the day compared with 3,970,000 on Wednesday.

Of a total 1,213 issues appearing 654 were higher, 384 lower.

GRAIN

CHICAGO (AP)—Wheat and rye led a surprisingly strong general advance in grain futures prices Friday on the Board of Trade.

Although some bullishness had been indicated the scope of the demand ran far ahead of most expectations so soon after the prolonged bearish sentiment of the year-end holidays.

The runup has so rapid that with prices at their peaks shortly before the close, they attracted a good volume of profit-taking for the weekend. Many dealers who bought early in the day were able to sell out before the close with profits of a cent a bushel or more in some contracts of wheat, corn, rye and soybeans.

The offerings clipped off some of the gains and all contracts finished under their highs of the day with corn giving up about half of its more moderate advances.

The demand was understood to have started with buyers usually associated with mill and export interests in wheat while the forecast of much colder weather over the Midwest was credited with the active buying of feed grains.

Advices over the holiday were that shipments of most grains, especially wheat, had been running heavier out of Chicago commercial positions than the arrivals. While stocks still are adequate in most grades to meet immediate foreseeable requirements, some dealers suggested there might be a shortage of the red winter variety if receipts continue at their recent slow rate much longer.

Wheat closed 3-1 1/2 cents a bushel higher, March 1.96 1/2-3/4; corn 1/4-1/2 higher, March old type contract 1.13 1/2; oats 1/4-1/2 higher, March 65 1/2; rye 1-1 1/2 higher, March 1.33 1/2-1/2; soybeans 1/4-1/2 higher, January 22.14 1/2.

The two children were thrown from the car and were found after a 20-minute search.

Richard Smith Jr., was electrocuted at Greenwood Thursday when a television antenna fell across a high voltage wire and a guy wire struck him on the ankle. He was watching workmen erect the antenna when the accident occurred.

AMERICANS IN CUBA

U.S. Ships Ready For Evacuation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States moved Friday to evacuate Americans from Cuba if that becomes necessary.

The White House said "there is no danger to any American citizen" in the Cuban revolution, but the Navy stationed five vessels off the island just in case.

The Navy said the ships, three destroyer escorts and two submarine tenders, are standing by at the request of the State Department.

The vessels were ordered to sea from the Key West, Fla., base. They are the destroyer escorts Jack W. Wake, F. M. Robinson and Peterson, and the submarine tenders Gilmore and Bushnell.

U.S. Senator Gets Support On Race Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) claimed growing support Friday for his proposal to ease racial tensions in the South by providing federal aid to Negro families who want to move to other areas of the country.

He told newsmen he intended "to work hard for this proposal and I believe it will have considerable support when people fully understand it."

"It won't cost much and I think it is the real solution to the problem," Russell added. He said that "after all, we have done the same thing in other countries" under the foreign aid program.

He said he would introduce a bill to carry out his proposal soon after Congress convenes next Wednesday.

Under his proposal, the federal government would provide financial aid to families wishing to improve their economic status by moving to another area of the country.

Russell emphasized the moving would be strictly voluntary and that white families as well as Negroes would be entitled to receive the federal aid.

He said white families, for example, could be aided in moving from depressed areas to territories offering job opportunities.

"It would be a great stimulus to business," Russell said. One feature of the plan, he said, would permit low-interest government loans to businessmen providing job opportunities to relocated families.

Civil Liberties Union Expects Congress Gains

NEW YORK (UPI)—The American Civil Liberties Union said on Friday some gains may "perhaps" be made in the new Congress in the areas of free speech and due process of law but that only a preliminary victory appeared in sight in the fight for Negro equality.

In an introduction to the 38th annual ACLU report, Executive Director Patrick Murphy Malin said that "men have once again this year been more successful in conquering outer space than in redeeming inner space." They have done better with satellites and trans-polar submarines than with themselves.

Malin said the ACLU could "justifiably feel a bit uplifted by the temper of the times" in the field of civil rights during the past year.

"Even before the elections," Malin said, "Congress had negatively aided the cause of civil liberties, by not passing a parcel of restrictive bills — notably those aimed at the Supreme Court because of its recent decisions upholding free speech, due process and equal protection of the laws."

He said the 86th Congress, which convenes next Wednesday, "promises far less danger to free speech and due process than the old, perhaps even some positive gains; but in the area of Negro equality, the only victory which seems reasonably probable is a preliminary one — curbing the filibuster."

SEIZE CUBAN CONSULAR RECORDS — Jose Luis Valera, left, present Cuban consul, talks with the man appointed by Fidel Castro to succeed him, Serapio Montejo, right, a leader of Castro sympathizers in Chicago and the Midwest. Cuban consular records throughout the world were ordered seized Friday by the Castro government. Looking on at center is Constantine N. Kangles, counsel for Castro in the United States. Montejo holds a portrait of Fidel Castro. (AP Wirephoto)

DEPENDS UPON CASTRO

Free, Honest Rule Is Goal Of Cubans

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — Young Fidel Castro, riding into power on an enormous wave of personal popularity, faces a golden opportunity to give Cuba what it has long craved — a free and honest constitutional government.

First he must re-establish order. Abuses and excesses must be expected in any revolutionary situation, but at the moment nobody is safe here.

Once order is restored out of the current upheaval, Castro will be in a position to proceed. And those who have had contact with him say he has the ability and intelligence to get the job under way.

Castro's persistent July 26th revolutionary moment never gave up the fight even when reduced to a handful of ragged guerrilla fighters in the fastnesses of the Sierra Maestra Mountains. It performed an astonishing feat. It rose from the ashes of defeat to resounding victory. Friday its forces moving into Havana were jubilantly hailed as liberators.

Sunday's mobs were selective in their targets. They ransacked gaudy gambling establishments which provided the glitter of Havana. They looted the rooms of many Cuban millionaires who grew rich on political corruption.

The mobs turned on parking meters and battered them with sledges. They knew the meters were installed by Batista relatives who were suspected of reaping rich profits from them.

They smashed at establishments displaying luxuries meant for the

and even expropriation of certain enterprises.

There has been some hint in his remarks that under his guidance Cuba might revise her business relations with the United States. But Castro may have had second thoughts. He must know that the United States, with its close to one billion dollars of private investment here, is important to Cuba's economic future.

It also is important that the United States remain Cuba's main customer for sugar, the backbone of the island's economy.

The economy can be a most promising one. Cuba has not yet even begun to develop her real potentialities. If Castro can build confidence abroad, the potentialities will be explored and put to good use to raise the standard of living here.

Much depends now upon the quick establishment of order. With a protracted period of peace, Cuban can make herself an inspiration to the rest of Latin America. Without peace, her bright future can be dimmed and set back for years.

Soviet Radar Jamming Net Is Discovered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American intelligence agents in Berlin have discovered a network of Russian radar and radio jamming equipment that could virtually wreck any new Allied airlift, Air Force sources said Friday.

The network surrounds the old German capital. It could be used to interfere with control tower operations and other navigational aids in event the Allies were forced to operate another airlift to save Berlin.

The Air Force officials said even if the jamming could be offset by counter-measures, there is serious doubt whether an air lift alone could rescue Berlin as it did in 1948-49. For one thing, they said, cargo demands would be 2½ times greater.

At the same time, a spokesman for the Joint Chiefs of Staff indicated the United States would favor armed ground "convoys" as a means of penetrating any blockade.

The West's rejection Wednesday of the Soviet "free city" proposal raised the possibility the East German Communists, fronting for the Russians, might try to shut off access to Berlin.

An Air Force official said even during the 1948 blockade the Russians had considerable jamming equipment around Berlin. He said the loss of several American planes then may have been due to jamming operations, although actual cause of the crashes was uncertain.
